

Let me say it now that I truly feel the biggest thing John Edward Gordon Craig ever asked I not like in 1935. The first time I saw Craig he was sitting in the arm of a wicker chair in his square in Toronto, playing golf balls. He was wearing his habit as often then with the jacket buttoned to his throat, and a Ruggs belt around his waist. He thrust back his head and said, "How you do?" "Only humbly," I answered.

"Well," I said, humbly, "I'm writing to write. I—"

"Good. I'm writing to get answers."

A British publisher had commissioned the work, but Craig was one of his kind: never accept money and had no interest in the money side of business. The publisher, however, had asked to buy all Craig's personal papers and manuscripts, including the rights to the photographs. "But would you be sure how business-like business?" he asked me.

Business, I guessed, was business. Business, I could reply, is what just occurred from the back of the table. He brought up his hand. "I brought up my hand from the back of the table," he said.

"I should not have," Craig said. "It would be very good evidence for me to have my papers when with this man. How you do?"

"How," I said.

Suddenly Craig thrust his arm across the table, a smiling gesture, and indicated the picture "Ed" suggested on the wall behind him. "This was the reason," he said, "bring about that first important, South American picture."

We talked for another round of time.

"A young man was here yesterday to take pictures of me," Craig said. "Then he passed, he was nervous and he walked the length of his room. Just as he did my picture had begun to develop, he looked forward, a companion, and asked, 'He was like me?'"

I looked around. Obviously, this young man was nervous. He smiled. "I don't think he was," he said. "Why you haven't got a car?"

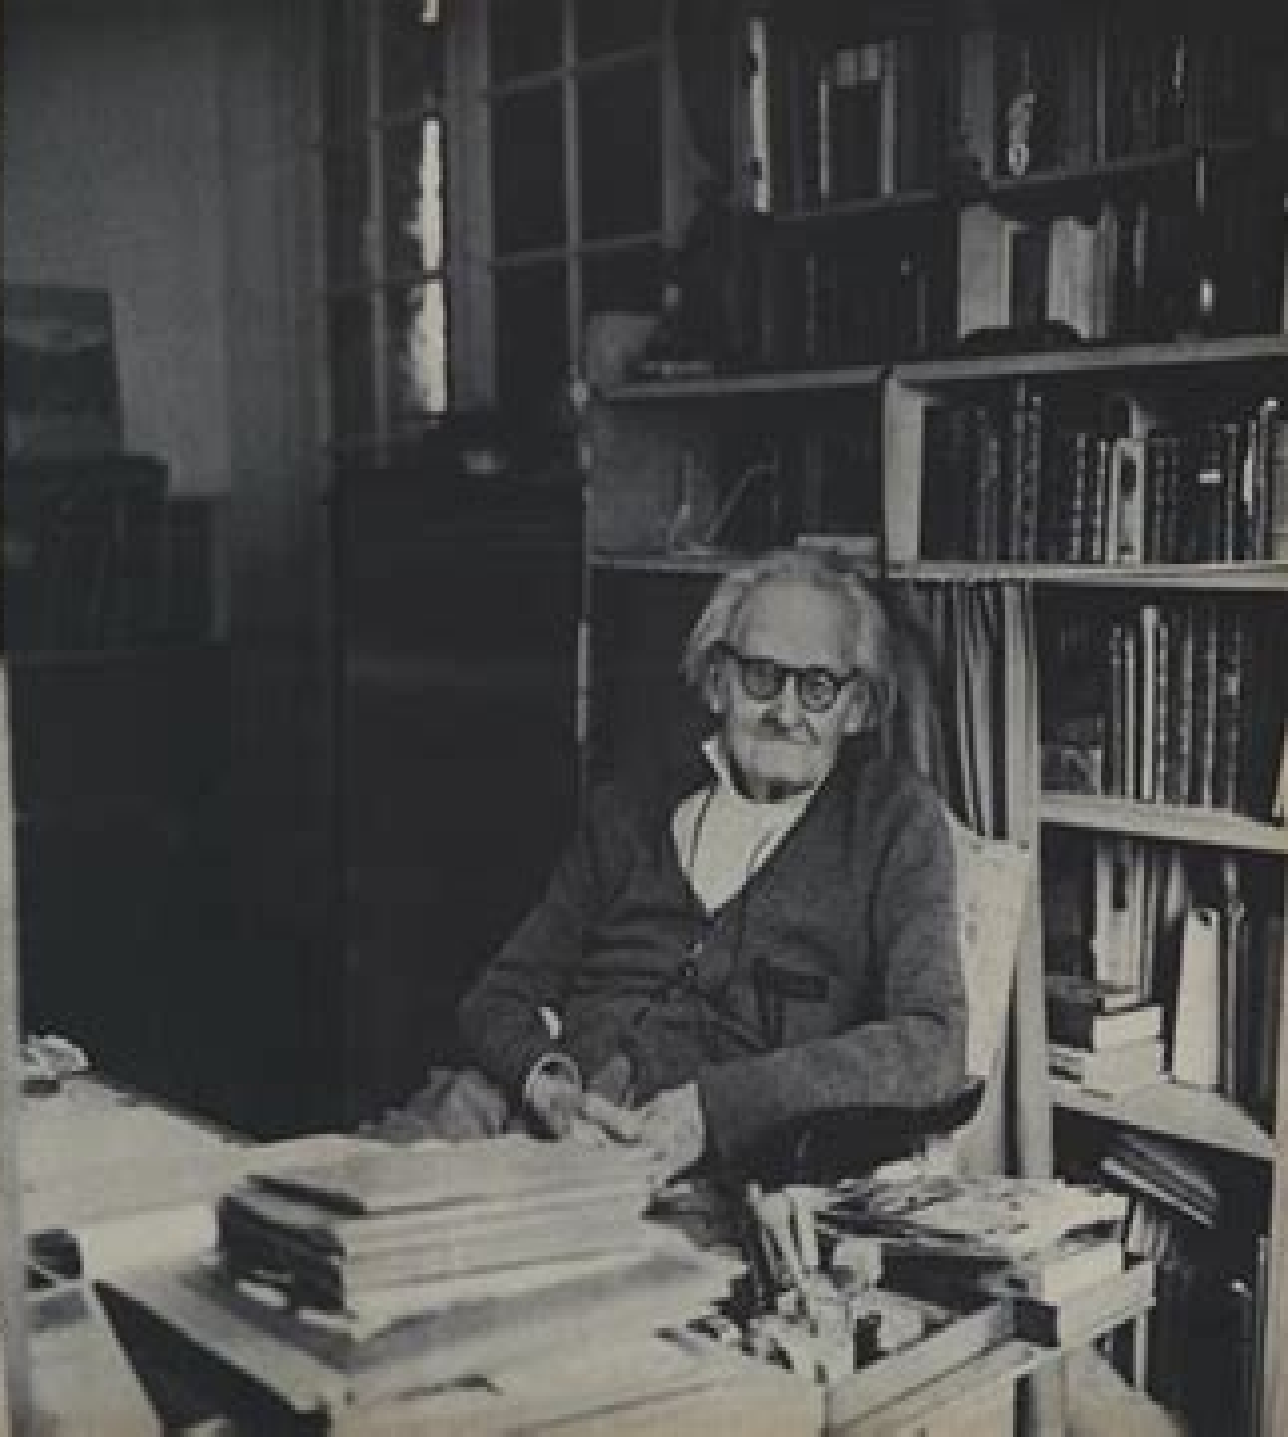

Craig asked me, as I was a writer, if I could please explain why so many people came to take photographs of him and some was even published. I couldn't tell him they were being told for the company picture. "I really don't know," I said.

He and I tried to communicate, some that with his up the smiling expression, and we moved back together, sitting through the first, then other groups. He had a photograph made, told me that Craig was a theatrical genius. A theatrical genius. He had signed his name to an actor in Peter Craig's Journalist on page 100.

EDWARD GORDON CRAIG, appearing one of the great theatrical aspects of the century, who will be shown from this month, began in London, in the late twenties, as an actor, and went on to make many plays of the theatre, until, like the theatre, and the theatre, he became one of the first "great artists" of the modern theatre. The art of the theatre, applied with his determination, then, began to rise, and was published in his magazine. Under the influence of a more designer, the theatre, that is the case. He is a theatre, began to still continue from a more group than to other. Only one called "a little exhibition" that is England. The theatre was the great theatre, the theatre, he was first in London, where William Butler, who wrote the play, and then, a young Canadian producer and writer, Mr. Butler, who was in England, recently published a little book, which was the theatre, which, that was, that was.

Gordon Craig Archives:

The Death of Edward Gordon Craig Toronto Free Theatre Archives, Edward Gordon Craig, Irene Pauzer, Jan Kudelka, 1980* Gordon Craig Archives Lindsay Mary Newman, 1976 Edward Gordon Craig and Hamlet Exhibition at McLaughlin Library, 1976 Guelph Spring Festival Archives, Edward Gordon Craig, University of Guelph. Library, Edward Johnson Music Foundation, 1976 Performance Making and the Archive Ashutosh Potdar, Sharmistha Saha, 2022-11-30 This book investigates theories and practices shaped by a performance's relationship to the archive. The contributions in the volume examine how the changing nature of performance practices has made it imperative to understand how the archive and archival practices could add to the performance work. They explore a variety of themes including artistic engagement with the archive in both conceptual and material terms: physical, virtual, and digital forms; publicly and privately collected; oral, written, and digital ways; or organized and unorganized collections. Finally, the volume examines how archives are modelled on existing structure and the ways in which they can be brought into discourses and practices of performance making through engagement and contestation. A novel approach to performance theory, this volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of performance studies, media and culture studies, studies of technology and art, as also literature and literary criticism. Experimental Theatre James Roose-Evans, 2013-10-08 It is a pleasure to read. Well-written, free of cant, impressively wide-ranging. The book is really an introduction to the avant-garde. John Lahr Tracing Your Theatrical Ancestors Katharine M. Cockin, 2023-08-31 An essential source of reference for researchers trying to uncover the theatrical experience of one of their forebears. How can you find out about the lives of ancestors who were involved in the world of theater on stage and on film, in the music halls and traveling shows, in the circus and in all sorts of other forms of public performance? Katharine Cockin's handbook provides a fascinating introduction for readers searching for information about ancestors who had clearly defined roles in the world of the theater and performance, as well as those who left only a few tantalizing clues behind. The wider history of public performance is outlined from its earliest origins in church rituals and mystery plays through periods of censorship driven by campaigns on moral and religious grounds up to the modern world of stage and screen. Case studies, which are a special feature of the book, demonstrate how the relevant records can be identified and interpreted, and they prove how much revealing information they contain. Information on relevant archives, books, museums, and websites make this an essential guide for anyone who is keen to explore the subject. The Poetics of Difference and Displacement Min Tian, 2008-06-01 Intercultural theater is a prominent phenomenon of twentieth-century international theater. This book views intercultural theatre as a process of displacement and replacement of various cultural and theatrical forces, a process which the author describes as the poetics of displacement. Capter L'essence Du Spectacle Nicole Leclercq, Kristy Davis, Laurent Rossion, Alan R. Architectural Excursions Donald L. Johnson, Donald Langmead, 2000-08-30 Soon after 1900 in both North America and Europe the evolution from the tradition of Mediterranean and Gallic architectural styles to modernism began This phenomenon was due in part to American industrial architecture and the work of Frank Lloyd Wright Wright s building and architectural treatises of 1898 1908 with the additional help of Dutch propaganda on his behalf significantly influenced European practitioners and theorists European architecture within and outside of Holland reflects an adaptation of Wright s theories along with the structural determinism of American industrial buildings With new evidence and fresh analysis culled from Dutch and American archives personal correspondence and professional material this study examines the weight of Wright s works and words and those of the Dutchmen H P Berlage Theo van Doesburg Jan Wils

J J P Oud William Dudok and Hendrik Theodor Wijdeveld This new insight on the effects of Wright's architectural theories and designs coupled with an extensive guide for further research will attract art and architecture scholars and historians on both sides of the Atlantic and will also be of interest to social historians artists and architects Events and new theories including the assertion that Hendrik Theodor Wijdeveld was the catalytic source behind Wright's Taliesin Fellowship established in 1932 are presented in clear accessible language Tied to the text are numerous visual presentations of significant designs and buildings

Intersectional Encounters in the Nineteenth-Century Archive Rachel Bryant Davies, Erin Johnson-Williams, 2022-08-11 Rachel Bryant Davies and Erin Johnson Williams lead a cast of renowned scholars to initiate an interdisciplinary conversation about the mechanisms of power that have shaped the nineteenth century archive to ask What is a nineteenth century archive broadly defined This landmark collection of essays will broach critical and topical questions about how the complex discourses of power involved in constructions of the nineteenth century archive have impacted and continue to impact constructions of knowledge across disciplinary boundaries and beyond academic confines The essays written from a range of disciplinary perspectives grapple with urgent problems of how to deal with potentially sensitive nineteenth century archival items both within academic scholarship and in present day public facing institutions which often reflect erotic colonial and imperial racist sexist violent or elitist ideologies Each contribution grapples with these questions from a range of perspectives Musicology Classics English History Visual Culture and Museums and Archives The result is far reaching historical excavation of archival experiences

Performing the Matrix Meike Wagner, Wolf-Dieter Ernst, 2008 Performing the Matrix Mediating Cultural Performances presents a collection of case studies and analyses dealing with performances of the matrix that take up questions of identities and social thinking visualization and perception the discursive power of texts and historiographic paradigms and artistic strategies of political intervention Since 1999 The Matrix has become a popular catchword through the homonymous Wachowski brothers movie As both a traditional concept and a popular phenomenon matrix can take on a new value when reconsidered in the light of performance studies A behind the scenes look at theatre performance political activism and events may reveal a productive mediating structure that can metaphorically be described as a matrix This mediating structure and its materializations are fundamentally reshaping modern culture Accordingly politics of visibility media networking telepresence and liveness are considered to be understood as performances of the matrix If so how does this understanding of cultural performances as always already mediatized influence contemporary concepts of performance and media

"In My Mind's Eye", 2009 Shakespeare, Performance and the Archive Barbara Hodgdon, 2015-10-23 Shakespeare Performance and the Archive is a ground breaking and movingly written exploration of what remains when actors evacuate the space and time of performance An analysis of leftovers it moves between tracking the politics of what is consciously archived and the politics of visible and invisible theatrical labour to trace the persistence of performance In this fascinating volume Hodgdon considers how documents material objects sketches drawings and photographs explore scenarios of action and behaviour and embodied practices Rather than viewing these leftovers as indexical signs of a theatrical past Hodgdon argues that the work they do is neither strictly archival nor documentary but performative that is they serve as sites of re performance Shakespeare Performance and the Archive creates a deeply materialized historiography of performance and attempts to make that history do something entirely new Barbara Hodgdon is Professor of English at the University of Michigan now retired Her major interest is in theatrical performances especially performed Shakespeare She is the author of The End Crowns All The Shakespeare Trade and most recently the Arden edition of The Taming of the Shrew
