home and considers how we can commence the journey towards a human rights framework to ensure decent and dignified care for older people. The book takes a comparative approach to present and future challenges facing the care home sector for older people in Africa, Kenya, the Arab world, Egypt, Australia, China, England, Israel, Japan, and the USA. An international panel of experts have contributed chapters identifying how their particular society cares for its older and oldest people, the extent to which demographic and economic change has placed their system under pressure, and the role that residential elder care homes play in their culture. The book also explores the extent to which constitutional or other rights form a foundation to the regulatory and legislative structures to residential elder care, and it examines the important concept of dignity. As a multi-regional study of the care of older persons from a human rights perspective, this book will be of excellent use and interest in particular to students and researchers of family and welfare law, long term care, social policy, social work, human rights, and elder law.
