At Sea in the City William Kornblum, 2013-05-29 New York is a city of few boundaries a city of well known streets and blocks that ramble on and on into our literature dreams and nightmares We know the city by the byways that split its streets like Broadway and Madison and Flatbush and Delancey From those streets peering down the blocks and up at the top floors the city seems immense and endless And though the land itself may end at the water the city does not Long before Broadway was a muddy cart track the water was the city's most distinguishing feature the rivers the only byways of importance Some people like William Kornblum still see the city as an urban archipelago shaped by the water and the people who have sailed it for goods money pirate's loot and freedom For them the City will always be an island William Kornblum New York City native longtime sailor urban sociologist and first time author has spent decades plying the waterways of the city in his ancient catboat Tradition In At Sea in the City he takes the reader along as he sails through his hometown lovingly retelling the history of the city's waterfront and maritime culture and the stories of the men and women who made the water their own In At Sea in the City and in Kornblum's own humility humor and sense of wonder one detects echoes of E B White John McPhee and Joseph Mitchell

The Redesigned Earth John T. Tanacredi, 2019-12-12 This book provides insight into the basic aspects of ecology that impact or are affected by engineering practices Ecological principals are described and discussed through the lens of the influences that built structures have on the Earth's biological geological and chemical systems The text goes on to elucidate the engineering influences that have or will influence the face of the Earth These influences redesign the Earth either by destroying natural systems and replacing them with highly subsidized systems or by attempting to restore highly disturbed or contaminated systems with the basic natural systems that were originally present
