MAURICE BLANCHOT

Preface by Geoffrey Hartman

Translated by Lydia Davis

*Edited, with an Afterword,
by P. Adams Sitney*

Preface by Geoffrey Hartman

This selection from the critical writings of Maurice Blanchot can only be suggestive of a distinguished oeuvre that began in the 1930s and spans forty years. Yet the selection is exemplary for its clearly translated and well-chosen excerpts from Blanchot's many influential books. Reading him now, and in this form, I feel once more the excitement of discovering Blanchot in the 1990s; and I wonder why it took so long to introduce him to an English-speaking public. There are difficulties, of course: certain of his themes are obsessively elaborated and his text-motifs may appear exotic. His reading has absorbed vast amounts of Continental philosophy, including Hegel and Heidegger, and near-untranslatable poets such as Hölderlin and Mallarmé. But the difficulties his work presents pale before the intrinsic interest of his meditations. The time has come when his text of mind—and prose—can be appreciated.

In the 1950s one was astonished at so intense a concentration on the "world" of the writer, as if the latter had his own element to live or die in, whatever the era, whatever the national language. Blanchot never removed his subjects from the writing-condition: from table, paper, ink, the act of naming or naming, the fluent ease or the dread impersonality and essence of writing as he understood Heidegger's "Being of the Metaphysics."
