Gcip Global Energy And Water Cycle Experiment Gewex Continental Scale International Project:

Global Energy and Water Cycle Experiment (GEWEX) Continental-Scale International Project National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Global Energy and Water Cycle Experiment (GEWEX) Panel, 1998-07-03 Efforts to understand climate variability and predict future climate change have highlighted many aspects of the hydrologic cycle and the exchange of energy and water at the atmosphere surface interface as areas of critically needed study. The very nature of weather and climate demands that an international perspective and a comprehensive research approach be applied to understand these important issues. In response to this need, the international partners of the World Climate Research Program developed GEWEX Global Energy and Water Experiment as a major focus of international study. As the first of five continental scale experiments, the GEWEX Continental Scale International Project GCIP was established to quantitatively assess the hydrologic cycle and energy fluxes of the Mississippi River basin. GCIP focuses on understanding the annual, interannual, and spatial variability of hydrology and climate within the Mississippi River basin, the development and evaluation of regional coupled hydrologic-atmospheric models, the development of data assimilation schemes, and the development of accessible comprehensive databases. Improved water resource management on seasonal to interannual time scales is also a key GCIP goal. This book reviews the GCIP program, describes progress to date, and explores promising opportunities for future progress. Scientific Plan for the

In addition, the panel was asked to provide guidance to the agencies on the relationships between the agencies' newly proposed hydrologic research activities (GAPP and CEOP). Providing this guidance is critical in part because the federal agencies tend to have somewhat differing priorities across the wide span of GEWEX activities. Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2000: Justification of the budget estimates,

The U.S. Geological Survey USGS has adapted to the changing political economic and technical state of the nation and the world since it was established in the late nineteenth century. Over a period of more than 120 years the USGS has evolved from a small group of scientists who collected data and provided guidance on how to parcel manage and use the public lands of the West to an agency comprised of thousands of scientists who conduct research and assessment activities on complex scientific issues at scales ranging from the local to the global. The USGS will no doubt continue to evolve and adapt to meet changing national needs. In fact the recent integration of the National Biological Service and parts of the U.S. Bureau of Mines into the USGS presents an ideal opportunity to examine the agency's vision, mission, role and scientific opportunities as the organization begins the early years of the twenty first century. The USGS recognized the need to adapt to changing demands when it asked the National Research Council (NRC) to undertake this study. The NRC formed a multidisciplinary committee of 16 experts to address issues related to the future roles, challenges and opportunities of the agency.     FSL in Review

This volume contains selected up to date professional papers prepared by specialists from various disciplines related to geosciences and water resources. Thirty papers discuss different aspects of environmental data modeling. It provides a forum bringing together contributions both theoretical and applied with special attention to Water in Ecosystems, Global Atmospheric Evolution, Space and Earth Remote Sensing, Regional Environmental Changes, Accessing Geoenvironmental Data and Ecotoxicological Issues. Geosciences and Water Resources: Environmental Data Modeling is now the fourth volume in the Series Data and Knowledge in a Changing World. Launched by CODATA after the 14th International Conference of the Committee on Data for Science and Technology in Chambéry, the purpose of this new Series is to collect from widely varying fields a wealth of information pertaining to the intelligent exploitation of data in science and technology and to make that information available to a multidisciplinary community. The present series encompasses a broad range of contributions including computer related handling and visualization of data to the major scientific, technical, medical and social fields. The titles of the previous published volumes are The Information Revolution, Impact on Science and Technology Modeling.
