Tribhāṣārātnākara A. P. Buddhadatta, 1928 Cetana and the Dynamics of Volition in Theravada Buddhism Nalini Devdas, 2008-01-01 What do the scriptures of Theravada Buddhism have to say about the most basic psychological processes through which alternatives are assessed purposes are developed and goal oriented acts are initiated How can Theravada make volitional endeavour central to Buddhist practice while denying the existence of a self who wills How can the text emphasize ethical striving and yet uphold the principle that all physical and mental acts arise through causes and conditions This book adds another perspective to Theravada scholarship by exploring various subtle Pali terms that seek to display the nuances of human motivation Cetana is shown to be the purposive impetus that links ethically good and bad attitudes of mind with corresponding acts of body speech and mind The argument is made that Theravada does not posit a controlling will but seek to establish the possibility of changing attitudes purposes and acts through holistic methods of training Theravada maintains that changes in attitude are possible because the mind has the capacity to observe its own processes of conditioning and is able to greatly diversify its responses to its own concepts and to factors in its environment promoting the world's literature in affordable high quality modern editions that are true to their original work Women in Pāli Buddhism Pascale Engelmaier, 2014-10-17 The Pāli tradition presents a diverse and often contradictory picture of women. This book examines women's roles as they are described in the Pāli canon and its commentaries. Taking into consideration the wider socio-religious context and drawing from early brahmanical literature and epigraphical findings, it contrasts these descriptions with the doctrinal account of women's spiritual abilities. The book explores gender in the Pāli texts in order to delineate what it means to be a woman both in the context in which the texts were composed and in the context of their ultimate goal that of achieving escape from the round of rebirths. The critical investigation focuses on the internal relationships and dynamics of one tradition and employs a novel methodology which the author calls critical sympathy. This assumes that the tradition's teaching is valid for all in particular that its main goal nibbāna is accessible to all human beings. By considering whether and how women's roles fit within this path, the author examines whether women have spiritual agency not only as bhikkhunis (Buddhist nuns) but also as wives and mothers. It offers a new understanding that focuses on how the tradition construes women's traditional roles within an interdependent community. It aims to understand how what many scholars have seen as contradictory and inconsistent characterizations of women in Buddhism have been accepted and endorsed by the Pāli tradition. With an aim to show that the Pāli canon offers an account of women that is doctrinally coherent and consistent with its sociological facts, this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Buddhism and Asian Religion.
