Handbook of the Psychology of Aging James E. Birren, K. Warner Schaie, 1977-01-01 The Many Faces of Health, Competence and Well-Being in

Old Age Hans-Werner Wahl, Herrmann Brenner, Heidrun Mollenkopf, Dietrich Rothenbacher, Christoph Rott, 2006-01-09 The main aim of the book is to provide an interdisciplinary treatment of a set of key issues of current ageing research i.e. health competence and well being. These key issues are addressed based on three converging research streams: social ecological research which assumes that major processes and outcomes of ageing such as day to day competence are shaped by social and physical spatial environments; geropsychology research which is driven by a life span developmental conception of ageing; and epidemiology which offers most fundamental disease function and prevention related data. Each of the three major research directions are outlined by a short introduction followed by three chapters treating in an empirical manner most recent key research questions. All chapters are then also discussed by renowned ageing experts. This volume links ageing research with policy considerations and implications and establishes a link between European research and the knowledge base of the international scientific community concerned with ageing. This book will be of great interest to scholars and graduate students in ageing research in the social and behavioural field as well as in epidemiology, geriatrics, geropsychiatry, demography and biogerontology. The Encyclopedia of Aging Richard Schulz, 2006 Print CourseSmart

Nursing for Wellness in Older Adults Carol A. Miller, 2009 Now in its Fifth Edition, this text provides a comprehensive and wellness oriented approach to the theory and practice of gerontologic nursing. Organized around the author's unique functional consequences theory of gerontologic nursing, the book explores normal age related changes and risk factors that often interfere with optimal health and functioning to effectively identify and teach health promotion interventions. The author provides research based background information and a variety of practical assessment and intervention strategies for use in every clinical setting. Highlights of this edition include expanded coverage of evidence based practice, more first person stories, new chapters and clinical tools such as assessment tools recommended by the Hartford Institute of Geriatric Nursing.

Handbook of Communication and Aging Research Jon F. Nussbaum, Justine Coupland, 2004-04-12 This second edition of the Handbook of Communication and Aging Research captures the ever changing and expanding domain of aging research. Since it was first recognized that there is more to social aging than demography, gerontology has needed a communication perspective. Like the first edition, this handbook sets out to demonstrate that aging is not only an individual process but an interactive one. The study of communication can lead to an understanding of what it means to grow old. We may age physiologically and chronologically but our social aging, how we behave as social actors toward others and even how we align ourselves with or come to understand the signs of difference or change as we age, are phenomena achieved primarily through communication experiences. Synthesizing the vast amount of research that has been published on communication and aging in numerous international outlets over the last three decades, the book's contributors include scholars from North America and the United Kingdom who are active researchers in the perspectives covered in their particular chapter. Many of the chapters work to deny earlier images of aging as involving normative decrement to provide a picture of aging as a process of development involving positive choices and providing new opportunities. A recurring theme in many chapters is that of the heterogeneity of the group of people who are variously categorized as older, aged, elderly, or over 65. The contributors review the literature analytically in a way that reveals not only current theoretical and methodological approaches to communication and aging research but also sets the future agenda. This handbook will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in gerontology, developmental psychology, and communication, and in this updated edition will continue to play a key role in the study of communication and aging.

Handbook of Gerontology Research Methods Leigh Riby, 2016-12-08. The Handbook of Gerontology Research Methods offers a clear understanding of the most important research challenges and issues in the burgeoning field of the psychology of aging. As people in developed countries live longer, so a range of research methods has evolved that allows a more nuanced understanding of how we develop psychologically and neurologically. Allied to this is an increasing concern with the idea of well-being, a concept which places cognitive performance and development within a more socially grounded context. With contributions from a range of top international scholars, the book addresses both typical and atypical aging, highlighting key areas such as physical and cognitive exercise, nutrition, stress, diabetes, and issues related to death, dying, and bereavement. Successful ageing is emphasised throughout the text. Each chapter concludes with a series of practical tips on how to undertake successful research in this area. This unique collection is the first book to provide both a concise overview of the major themes, findings, and current controversies in this growing field, as well as an understanding of the practical issues when researching older adults, which may impact on research outcomes, intervention policy, and future directions. Designed for both students and researchers interested in the psychology of aging, but also highly relevant for students or researchers in related fields such as health psychology and social care, the Handbook of Gerontology Research Methods is essential reading for anyone wishing to understand more about the psychology of aging.

Handbook of Mental Health and Aging James E. Birren, Gene D. Cohen, R. Bruce Sloane, Barry D. Lebowitz, Donna E. Deutchman, May Wykle, Nancy R. Hooyman, 2013-10-22.
