The Communist Takeover of Hangzhou James Z. Gao, 2004-02-28 Existing literature on the Chinese Revolution takes into account the influence of peasant society on Mao's ideas and policies but rarely discusses a reverse effect of comparable significance namely how peasant cadres were affected by the urban environment into which they moved In this detailed examination of the cultural dimension of regime change in the early years of the Revolution James Gao looks at how rural based cadres changed and were changed by the urban culture that they were sent to dominate He investigates how Communist cadres at the middle and lower levels left their familiar rural environment to take over the city of Hangzhou and how they consolidated political control established economic stability developed institutional reforms and created political rituals to transform the urban culture His book analyzes the interplay between revolutionary and non revolutionary culture with respect to the varying degrees with which they resisted and adapted to each other It reveals the essential role of cultural identity in legitimizing the new regime and keeping its revolutionary ideal alive

Students and Teachers of the New China Madelyn Holmes, 2014-11-01 In this collection of interviews with students and teachers in Hangzhou China the reader meets a student at Zhejiang university majoring in English and studying Japanese and Italian a teacher who spent his childhood as a little Red Guard of the Cultural Revolution and went on to study in England a young girl who dreams of princesses and romance and another who wants to be a backpacker when she grows up and more Ranging in age from 7 to 52 the thirteen interviewees represent a cross section of Chinese culture and experience with various levels of social status education and economic standing Their words supplemented by the author's detailed descriptions of their surroundings and daily activities offer a fresh perspective on life in present day China

Hangchow, My Home Eugenia Barnett Schultheis, 2000 Recalls the city of Hangchow from the perspective of the young daughter of an American missionary family in the early 1900s Eugenia Schultheis' memoir paints an entrancing picture of the venerated capital city at the time when the influence of the West had only begun to be felt Winner of the 2001 BAIPA Award for Best Memoir

War and Occupation in China Charles Bright, Joseph W. Ho, 2017-10-23 A fresh eyewitness account of the Japanese invasion of mid China in 1937-1938 these letters by an American missionary in Hangzhou provide a vividly detailed first hand account of the spread of war from Shanghai across the Yangtze valley and the subsequent ordeals of military occupation seen against the better known backdrop of the Nanjing Massacre one man's embedded experience in one major Chinese city of one chaotic year of war Already 25 years in Republican China and fluent in the language when the Japanese arrived the author was well placed as both an observer of and participant in harrowing events the provost of the Hangzhou Christian College and responsible for its campus president of the local Red Cross which organized refugee camps and shelter for those displaced by the looting and raping that ensued and chairman of an International Committee which sought to mediate between Japanese and Chinese forces in an effort to limit destruction and then to negotiate with the occupation regime on a day to day basis The letters written twice weekly describe pitched battles and aerial bombing the fearful conditions of civilian refugees the exigencies of the missionary enterprise and the experiences of foreign neutrals in wartime China as well as the practical dilemmas of collaboration that arose under occupation moving about protecting refugees procuring food tending a dairy herd and ministering to embattled congregations The letters are fully annotated to give readers a fuller perspective on places people and events that surround the eyewitness accounts A substantially researched introductory essay provides necessary historical background and situates the author in a longer missionary career that began in 1911 and ended with wartime internment in 1943 In the Days of the Taipings Hosea Ballou Morse,1927 American Book Publishing Record ,2000-07
