A Private Mythology To celebrate her fiftieth birthday

Sarton embarked on a pilgrimage around the world. Traveling through Japan, India, and Greece, she captured her spiritual discoveries in this vivid collection of poetry. Arresting images and meditations on the differences between East and West are rendered in this colorful, polished winner of the Emily Clark Balch Prize. Kirkus Reviews As Does New Hampshire May Sarton, 2014-12-23 May Sarton's exquisitely rendered tribute to her home state. Over the course of her career, May Sarton wrote on a range of topics and places in both prose and poetry and traveled across the world in search of new subjects. There is, however, one place that she always returned to: in the end, Nelson, New Hampshire. Written in honor of the town's bicentennial, As Does New Hampshire follows the course of a year in this rural hamlet. Sarton gracefully describes the ever-present role of nature, which always reminds humans that their presence on earth is temporary. She conveys both the beauty and the difficulty of a New England winter and the full bloom of spring and summer. Above all, though, As Does New Hampshire is a lasting tribute, not only to Sarton's home but to the greater concept of home found in the heart of every reader.

Faithful Are the Wounds May Sarton, 2015-08-18 A professor's suicide is the catalyst for this novel about politics and ideals set at Harvard during the 1950s. When Harvard professor Edward Cavan commits suicide by throwing himself under a subway train, his death sets off shock waves both across campus and in the hearts of his loved ones. To Edward's estranged sister Isabel, her brother represented the dangers she sought to escape through the security of marriage. His student, George Hastings, saw in Edward the father he wished he had. Damon Phillips shared Edward's idealistic beliefs until his fear of being branded a Communist caused him to betray his friend. And Ivan Goldberg knew Edward as a man who would rather die than compromise his beliefs. Through the eyes of those he touched, Edward comes alive again, and we begin to understand who he is and what he stands for. With a title that is a metaphor for the embattled lives of 1950s liberals, Faithful Are the Wounds is about what it means to be American and human in a world that can affect us on the most profound spiritual and ideological levels. It is about how much we are willing to sacrifice for our freedom and what happens when our values are destroyed.

In Time Like Air May Sarton, 2014-03-25 DIVDIVER Finalist for the National Book Award May Sarton at her evocative and contemplative best. divDIVER The title poem of this entrancing collection compares love to salt for its ability both to dissolve and to crystallize into a presence. At once philosophical and fiercely corporeal, this work presents emotion as a sensory experience. Written with Sarton's characteristic concision, these deeply felt poems will delight readers.

div div The Birth of a Grandfather May Sarton, 2015-08-18 May Sarton's 7th novel is about marriage, family life's cycles, and the regeneration of love. Frances and Sprig Wyeth have come to the old Wyeth house in Maine for the summer. In a house filled with lively members of her husband's extended family, Frances feels alienated from everyone, including Sprig. A night of passion breaks down the growing barriers between them, yet Frances feels it is more a desperate moment of possession than the true flowing together of two deeply joined selves. And although she's the mother of two grown children in many ways, she still feels like a child waiting to mature into adulthood. Sprig adores his wife. But now, at 50, he both wants her and wants her to leave He longs for freedom and is haunted by memories of his youth His son Caleb is hostile his unmarried daughter Betsy is pregnant Sprig feels as if he is walking in the dark and has begun to doubt himself as a husband father and friend The Birth of a Grandfather is the story of a marriage and a family of friendship and the love that reminds us that we are alive and that we matter It s about the small domestic moments and the defining events that make up a life
