Mapping the World at the Dawn of the British Empire is a compact and informative guide to the ways in which the world was understood and imagined by British travellers and readers in the Tudor and Jacobean period just before the rapid expansion of the transoceanic British Empire from the mid seventeenth century onwards The book shows how the relatively restricted English speaking world understood different people and places sometimes through direct encounters more often through descriptions and travel narratives The book covers British perceptions of the diverse cultures of the world known to them in the early seventeenth century from Paris to the South Sea Islands from the earliest precarious colonies established in the Americas to the mighty Ottoman and Chinese empires from the frozen north as sailors vainly sought to open up new trade routes by discovering the north west or north east passages to the arid deserts of the Sahara from the rich fishing grounds of the Baltic and the North Atlantic to the mythical kingdom of Prester John the fabled golden city of El Dorado and the hidden societies of the dangerous women warriors the Amazons The book shows that British readers encountered a vision of the world that simultaneously represented them as specially selected white Christians superior to other peoples but also reminded them how dependent they were on other peoples whose territories produced such vast riches Reading these accounts of travel trade and colonialism demonstrates that English speakers realized how much they had to learn if their nations were to survive and flourish as well as the possibilities for accumulating wealth through trade and conquest The book is divided into six chapters each prefaced by a contemporary map Europe The North Islamic West Asia and the Eastern Mediterranean East Asia and the South Seas Africa and The Americas There is an introduction a conclusion a bibliographical essay and a guide explaining how to use the book There are also 35 illustrations comprising of maps portraits and images of relevant objects discussed in the text

Life on a New World Voyage Andrew A. Kling, 2004 Millions of men women and children risked their lives in wooden sailing ships some no larger than a modern city bus to reach the New World Many made the voyage willingly hoping for a better life in growing European colonies Others such as slaves from Africa did not But all faced the common hardships of disease violence dangerous weather and death in their attempts to cross the Atlantic Ocean

The Indians' New World James H. Merrell, 2012-12-01. This eloquent pathbreaking account follows the Catawbas from their first contact with Europeans in the sixteenth century until they carved out a place in the American republic three centuries later. It is a story of Native agency, creativity, resilience, and endurance. Upon its original publication in 1989, James Merrell's definitive history of the Catawbas and their neighbors in the southern piedmont helped signal a new direction in the study of Native Americans, serving as a model for their reintegration into American history. In an introduction written for this twentieth anniversary edition, Merrell recalls the book's origins and considers its place in the field of early American history in general and Native American history in particular, both at the time it was first published and two decades later.
