THE SCOTS MAGAZINE

For a concise history of The Scots Magazine, one could hardly improve on its obituary published in the Gentleman's Magazine for July 1808 (pp. 600-610).

"On the 29th of July, the copyright of the Scots Magazine was offered to public sale, at an auction-room in Edinburgh, for the price of £500, and was not sold; the stock was exposed at £400, and the stock and copyright at £500, without effecting a sale. 'The Scots' Magazine was begun and published, by monthly numbers, in Edinburgh, on January 1733, by Messrs. Murray and Cochran, printers, and was continued under the same firm, to the end of the year 1763. The copyright was then purchased by Messrs. Wilson and Co. booksellers, who began a new series, in 1764, volume 56, and continued the publication till the year 1800.

"It then came into the hands of Mr. Constable, who, under the name of 'The Scots Magazine,' published it, from 1801 to 1807, under the title of 'The Edinburgh Magazine, and Literary Miscellany, a New Series of the Scots Magazine.' In 1808, he sold the copyright to Mr. John Murray, who, under the name of 'The Edinburgh Magazine, and Literary Miscellany,' published it, from 1809 to 1812, when, the work being enlarged, the year's publication, or twelve monthly numbers, were divided into two volumes. At the end of the last year, the volumes in all amounted to nearly 100."

Volumes 1-25 of a 'New Series' of The Scots Magazine, a monthly miscellany of Scottish life and letters, was published from December 1807 to May 1808 (superceding Scotland Church), 'a review of The Scots Magazine first published in 1733' has been published by the Scots Antwerp Society. Neither of these later series has been reviewed here but they could be consulted for numismatically-related events of the past century.

During almost the entire period of publication, there was great concern about, and controversy over, the developing Scottish banking system. Scottish Banknotes, by James Douglas (London, 1970) provides a useful guide to a sometimes seemingly chaotic situation, although the private banks which issued only small-denomination notes are not included.
