Knowledge and Practice Patricia Murphy,Robert

McCormick,2008-07-18 Longstanding cultural heritages about the nature of knowledge continue to dominate Western education Yet the ways of knowing represented through teaching and workplace practices including assessment and their relationship to views of learning are often ignored in debates about learning This book provides a rich collection of readings that challenge traditional understandings of knowledge and the view of mind that underpins them It offers socioculturally informed alternatives and tools for innovating change and transforming practice that value different ways of knowing embracing those that learners bring to educational and workplace settings The book takes forward thinking about curriculum in a number of unique and important ways It adopts a relational view of learning and knowledge covers educational and workplace learning and examines knowledge from a sociocultural perspective where learner identities are conceived as forms of competency or knoweldge It presents challenging ways of thinking about knowledge and learning and considers how to enact these in practice Drawing from the international literature this book will be essential reading for students of curriculum learning and assessment in all sectors from primary to further and higher education It is suitable as a core text for masters and taught doctorate programmes It will also be of interest to a wide range of professionals involved with the processes of curriculum learning and the practice of teaching and assessment It will be relevant to those in work based and professional education and training and informal educationsl settings as well as traditional educational institutions at all levels A unique collection in a field that is underrepresented it will also be of interest to an academic audience

Race and Intelligence Jefferson M. Fish,2013-05-13 In recent years reported racial disparities in IQ scores have been the subject of raging debates in the behavioral and social sciences and education What can be made of these test results in the context of current scientific knowledge about human evolution and cognition Unfortunately discussion of these issues has tended to generate more heat than light Now the distinguished authors of this book offer powerful new illumination Representing a range of disciplines psychology anthropology biology economics history philosophy sociology and statistics the authors review the concept of race and then the concept of intelligence Presenting a wide range of findings they put the experience of the United States so frequently the only focus of attention in global perspective They also show that the human species has no races in the biological sense though cultures have a variety of folk concepts of race that there is no single form of intelligence and that formal education helps individuals to develop a variety of cognitive abilities Race and Intelligence offers the most comprehensive and definitive response thus far to claims of innate differences in intelligence among races

Handbook of Competence and Motivation, First Edition Andrew J. Elliot,Carol S. Dweck,2013-10-15 This important handbook provides a comprehensive authoritative review of achievement motivation and establishes the concept of competence as an organizing framework for the field The editors synthesize diverse perspectives on why and how individuals are motivated in school work sports and other settings Written by leading investigators chapters reexamine central constructs in achievement motivation explore the impact of developmental contextual and sociocultural factors and analyze the role of self regulatory processes Focusing on the ways in which achievement is motivated by the desire to experience competence and avoid experiencing incompetence the volume integrates disparate theories and findings and sets forth a coherent agenda for future research
