Water Resources and Conflict in the Middle East Nurit Kliot, 2005-07-28. The Middle East is a region of international concern and political unrest. This book forms a complete reference to both the hydrological as well as the social, economic, political and legal issues in the region and shows how water shortages threaten the renewal of military conflicts and disruption in the area. With resources over extended due to natural and human causes, the book analyses the river basins of the Euphrates, Tigris, Nile and Jordan and provides detailed study of the hydrology, hydrography and geography of these river basins; it also analyses the needs of the economies and societies of the countries bordering these basins. State Accountability for Space Debris Peter Stubbe, 2017-11-13. In State Accountability for Space Debris, Peter Stubbe examines the legal consequences of space debris pollution, which he argues is a global environmental concern. The study finds that the customary no-harm rule and Article IX of the Outer Space Treaty obligate States to prevent the generation of debris and that the international community as a whole has a legitimate interest in their compliance. A breach of these obligations entails the responsibility of a State and compensation must be provided for damage caused by space debris. The author treats responsibility and liability separately and thoroughly scrutinizes both legal regimes with the help of common analytical elements. Finally, Peter Stubbe argues that a comprehensive traffic management system is required so as to ensure the safe and sustainable use of outer space.

The Designation of Marine Protected Areas Anna von Rebay, 2023-05-23. This book

provides empirical evidence that all States have a universally binding obligation to adopt national laws and international treaties to protect the marine environment including the designation of Marine Protected Areas Chapter by chapter this obligation is detailed providing the foundation for holding States responsible for fulfilling this obligation The fundamentals are analysed in a preliminary chapter which examines the legally binding sources of the Law of the Sea as well as its historical development to help readers understand the key principles at hand The Law of the Sea provides more than 1000 instruments and more than 300 regulations concerning marine protection While the scope of most treaties is limited either regarding species regions or activities one regulation addresses States in all waters the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment as stipulated under Art 192 of the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS As this Constitution of the Ocean not only contains conventional laws but also very broadly reflects pre existing rules of customary international law an extensive analysis of all statements made by States in the UN General Assembly their practices national laws and regulations as well as other public testimonials demonstrates that Art 192 UNCLOS indeed binds the whole community of States as a rule of customary international law with an erga omnes effect Due to the lack of any objections and its fundamental value for humankind this regulation can also be considered a new peremptory norm of international law ius cogens While the sovereign equality of States recognises States freedom to decide if and how to enter into a given obligation States can also waive this freedom If States accepted a legally binding obligation they are thus bound to it Concerning the specific content of Art 192 UNCLOS a methodical interpretation concludes that only the adoption of legislative measures national laws and international agreements suffices to comply with the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment which is confirmed by the States practices and relevant jurisprudence When applied to a specific geographical area legislative measures to protect the marine environment concur with the definition of Marine Protected Areas Nonetheless as the obligation applies to all waters the Grotian principle of the freedom of the sea dictates that the restriction of activities through the designation of Marine Protected Areas on the one hand must be weighed against the freedoms of other States on the other To anticipate the result while all other rights under the UNCLOS are subject to and contingent on other regulations of the UNCLOS and international law only the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment is granted absolutely and thus outweighs all other interests

Transboundary Environmental Interference and the Origin of State Liability René Lefeber, 2023-09-14 On going deterioration of the state of the environment and the continuous risk of an environmental disaster has forced society to reconsider its environmental and developmental objectives For economic and environmental reasons the costs of prevention and reparation of environmental harm should be channelled to the polluter However such channelling may run counter to legal principles This work scrutinizes this field of tension between economic and legal principles at state level It provides a unique analysis of traditional thinking on state liability for transboundary harm and the theories which have challenged it since the proliferation of hazardous activities in the 1960s

The author favours a return to traditional thinking but has an eye for the theories that challenged it with the aim of safeguarding the compensation of victims of transboundary harm
