Encouraging Learning Towards A Theory Of The Learning School:

Encouraging Learning Jon Nixon, 1996 This book offers a radical critique of both the Government's agenda for educational reform and of the various alternative agendas that have been proposed in recent years. It is based upon original research by a distinguished interdisciplinary author team. The focus of the book is on the work of secondary schools located in contexts of disadvantage and on the overwhelming need to motivate young people and to foster in them a sense of purpose and optimism for the future. In particular the authors discuss how broader social trends impact upon schools as they move towards the year 2000: ways of understanding the low educational expectations of many young people and their disaffected attitude towards schooling; strategies by which schools can motivate students to take responsibility for their own learning and ways of working in partnership with parents and in collaboration with other schools.

Inside the Learning Society Stewart Ranson, 1998-11-01 As an approach to the diverse and shifting learning needs of today, the learning society labours under a definitional generosity which has led to three different models evolving with competing claims. This book traces the history of the concept and lucidly lays out these three interpretive models: learning for work, learning for citizenship and learning for democracy. The book's close scrutiny concludes with an analysis that synthesizes and sharpens our understanding of the learning society. With due consideration given to the emerging critique and with chapters from public bodies engaged in implementing learning society principles, Inside the Learning Society offers a comprehensive appraisal of ideas and practices. This is a book of great significance for anyone concerned about or involved in the future of education.

Success Against The Odds Paul Hamlyn, 2003-10-04 Success Against the Odds is an exciting book about effective schools in disadvantaged areas, written for a wide audience. The findings will be invaluable to headteachers, teachers, governors in all schools and will also be of great interest to parents and indeed all those who are concerned about the future of our schools and our children. The best-selling report of the National Commission on Education, Learning to Succeed, published in 1993, achieved widespread attention, acclaim and influence. Success Against the Odds will do the same. This powerful new book picks up one of the key themes of its predecessor: namely, how schools in disadvantaged areas can not only be particularly effective but can continue to improve. A dozen teams have undertaken to investigate a school which can be described as succeeding against the odds. Each team includes a leading educationalist providing knowledge about effective teaching and learning and expertise in school improvement; someone from the business world offering a fresh insight into the successful management of the school as an organisation and its interaction with the world of work; someone working in the regeneration of deprived areas providing a perspective that places education not in isolation but as an interdependent part of the life of a local community. The teams have visited a range of successful schools in disadvantaged areas to identify and analyse the key features of their effectiveness or of their improvement. The schools between them cover a broad spectrum: primary, secondary and special; inner city, town and rural; local education authority maintained, voluntary and grant maintained. What all the schools have in common is proven experience of overcoming difficult circumstances In the case of each school in depth investigations of the life and work of the school have taken place and the teams have attempted to explain the success of these schools Some are detailed accounts of the life and work of the school drawing on the views of pupils parents and teachers to show what lies behind the consistent effectiveness of the school Others are stories of schools that were turned round from being failing schools to being schools on a long term improvement path In the concluding chapter the National Commission on Education show that all schools have lessons to learn from these schools Vision and Values in Managing Education Judith Bell, Bernard T. Harrison, 2018-05-11 Originally published in 1995 This book argues that in order to fulfil its task of moving schools and colleges forward to meet the demands of the future the management of education must be inspired by both value and vision applied to the actual management of people and resources Part 1 examines key critical issues that should guide principles of school and college management Part 2 identifies key aspects of the management and leadership of people including case studies of effective team leadership Part 3 deals with the management of all educational resources to achieve improvement and success in schools and colleges Meditation in Schools Clive Erricker, Jane Erricker, 2001-03-01 This introduction to meditation in education is written as a resource for class teachers and educators as a practical guide Parents will also find it valuable though its main focus is in using meditation in schools The purpose of the book is to inspire and to provide concise practical and general information and techniques that can be considered and explored before introducing primary or secondary students to meditative experience Meditation in schools covers such topics as o information on schools where meditation is practiced and the perceived results o issues and concerns involved with introducing meditation in schools o the relationship between mediation and other relaxation quieting techniques o experiential learning and a holistic approach to education This essential guide is written from the contributors personal and professional practice experience and emphasizes how meditation can contribute to the school environment and to the curriculum as well as developing the positive potential of students hearts and minds It includes a useful section on further reading

Teaching Modern Languages in the Primary School Patricia Driscoll, David Frost, 2005-06-23 It has been argued for some time that to improve language learning in Britain we need to start earlier as many other European countries do This book is addressed to policy makers and teachers who are considering the possibility of getting involved in the teaching of MFL in the primary school The Teaching of Modern Foreign Languages in the Primary School Patricia Driscoll, David Frost, 1999 It has been argued for some time that to improve language learning in Britain we need to start earlier as many other European countries do This book is addressed to policy makers and teachers who are considering the possibility of getting involved in the teaching of MFL in the primary school Refocusing School Leadership Robert J. Starratt, 2010-09-13 Refocusing School Leadership departs from the more traditional conceptualization of leadership looking behind the daily routines of human resource leaders to highlight the assumptions and values and beliefs they bring to their work as well as the values and meanings embedded in the various contexts of school life Starratt explores how educational leadership is grounded in one's own humanity as well as in a deep appreciation of the richness, complexity and enormous potential of people and he attempts to restore the centrality of human development in the work of educating the young. Education is not simply about educating minds but about developing whole persons. Starratt argues for a refocusing of educational leadership on affirming and enabling those talents, dispositions, interests, life experiences and cultural proficiencies that comprise their humanity to enrich the work of learning. The vision of the school should speak of the extraordinary possibilities for human achievement in our young people as well as the talents of their teachers to nurture those possibilities. Starratt's focus on leadership as human resource development will energize the efforts of faculty, staff and students to improve the quality of learning, the primary work of schools. This book is a valuable resource to prepare aspiring leaders, whether administrators or teachers, to deal with the way schools are currently run and to imagine and create better ways to promote quality learning for all.

Applying Psychology in the Classroom Jane Leadbetter, 2013-11-26 First Published in 1999. Each publication in this series of books is concerned with approaches to intervention with children with specific needs in mainstream schools. This book is written primarily for newly qualified primary teachers and any teachers interested in the application of psychologically based approaches in the classroom. Its orientation is eclectic, drawing on a variety of psychological theories we have found useful in our work as educational psychologists in schools.

Professional Values and Practice James Arthur, Jon Davison, Malcolm Lewis, 2005-04-30. The professional code of the General Teaching Council lists eight new standards, each of them analysed here in detail using questions and activities to describe what trainee teachers need to know, understand and demonstrate as they work towards Qualified Teacher Status. Each of the eight standards covers the following issues: expectations, diversity and achievement, personal and professional values, values in the classroom, values, rights and responsibilities in the wider community, the community of the school, professional relationships, personal and professional development, professional responsibility. This practical and jargon-free guide features an extensive range of examples and suggestions for further reading, designed to help those in their early professional development.

Performance Management in Education Pauline Smith, Christine Forde, 2002-06-03. This book provides an overview of some of the key issues in developing professional performance and examines critically some of the key strategies that can be used to enhance professional performance.

Desirable Science Education Theresa Schulte, 2017-05-03. As part of an international curricular Delphi study, Theresa Schulte realizes an empirically based approach to a contemporary understanding of scientific literacy from the perspective of different stakeholders in Germany. The analyses show in which areas changes are necessary so that science education can better fulfill its claim to contribute to students' general education and literacy.

Managing Pastoral Care Mike Calvert, Jenny Henderson, 1998-04-01. Pastoral care provision in schools has become increasingly marginalized in recent years. However, emphasis on the needs of the whole learner has become ever greater Coupled with this is a growing recognition of the adverse effects of a wider social malaise on the development of students This book stresses the need for a radical rethink and reprioritizing of pastoral support It promotes the belief that pastoral care can contribute to and improve academic achievement and analyzes every aspect of pastoral care and PSE

Intercultural Pedagogical Reflections on Taiwan's Education Jason C. Chan, Tsao-Lin Fong, Rainer Kokemohr, Huang-Yao Hong, Yung-Kang Hsu, Hsin-Yi Huang, Guo-Tsai Hung, Ming-Shiang Ni, Shing-Shiang Ting, Hui-Ping Wu, Pichun Wu, 2018-12-01 This book is a product of intercultural dialogues between Rainer Kokemohr from Germany and educational scholars from Taiwan during a period of more than 15 years When professor Kokemohr served as a part time chair professor at the College of Education NCCU he had the opportunity to observe different schools and to dialogue with many scholars Section One of the book presents discussions on pedagogical norms and goals Section Two brings together articles that discuss educational goals in relation to concrete social interactions or special pedagogically significant phenomena and structures that determine teaching learning processes within educational institutions In Section Three the authors discuss the challenge of modern education in view of historical or life historical educational conditions
