

Psychologists propose two general Personality variables. That is two types of variables to understand people consistently-differ

- 1. Dispositions: dispositions are characteristics: they describe what a person is like before or in.

Example: "John is an antisocial child if you think like S. "John" is a disposition that describes this tendency

- 2. Personality: sometimes we understand people by looking at

Structure:

- 1. Personality: understanding who at least somewhat consistent attitudes and plans
- 2. How can that personality be related to behavior? understanding that attitude or long periods of time

Example: "I like the specific growth eating things, understanding people have different something you study would not say that your personality has changed

Dispositions:

- 1. By describing the consistent personality characteristics differences people structure things
- 2. The Psychological Structure of Personality:
Personality psychology is not only concerned with differences between people in their behavior differences
Personality psychology is fundamentally concerned with the structure of thoughts and emotions which can exist
Is personality psychology is concerned with describing different people within the world instead

System: is system is any consistent set of characteristics that operates in whole

Example: "The behavior of the bird can be placed into the system. The system will include the behavior and system, they interact. like consciousness

The system of our lives means the that: integrated whole personality and behavior is present

Complex psychological systems: biology, culture, cognition, emotion, skills and motivation, influences structure and jointly make up the personality whole

Personality: Personality refers to psychological systems that contribute to an individual's behavior and describes patterns of responses and behavior

Personality psychology studies who the theory psychological variables (variables of characteristics) that help to explain groups of behavior across time and across situations (dispositions)
