Protestant missionary children's lives, c.1870-1950 Hugh Morrison, 2024-03-05 Protestant missionary children were uniquely empire citizens through their experiences of living in empire and in religiously formed contexts This book examines their lives through the related lenses of parental institutional and child narratives To do so it draws on histories of childhood and of emotions using a range of sources including oral history It argues that missionary children were doubly shaped by parents concerns and institutional policy responses At the same time children saw their own lives as both ordinary and complicated Literary representations boosted adult narratives Empire provided a complex space in which these children navigated their way between the expectations of two if not three different cultures The focus is on a range of settings and on the early twentieth century Therefore the book offers a complex and comparative picture of missionary children s lives

American Behavioral History Peter N. Stearns,2005-10 From his founding of The Journal of Social History to his groundbreaking work on the history of emotions weight and parenting Peter N Stearns has pushed the boundaries of social history to new levels presenting new insights into how people have lived and thought through the ages Having established the history of emotions as a major subfield of social history Stearns and his collaborators are poised to do the same thing with the study of human behavior This is their manifesto American Behavioral History deals with specific uses of historical data and analysis to illuminate American behavior patterns ranging from car buying rituals to sexuality and from funeral practices to contemporary grandparenting The anthology illustrates the advantages and parameters of analyzing the ways in which people behave and adds significantly to our social understanding while developing innovative methods for historical teaching and research At its core the collection demonstrates how the study of the past can be directly used to understand current behaviors in the United States Throughout contributors discuss not only specific behavioral patterns but importantly how to consider and interpret them as vital historical sources Contributors include Gary Cross Paula Fass Linda Rosenzweig Susan Matt Steven M Gelber Peter N Stearns Suzanne Smith Mark M Smith Kevin White
