Adolescents: Tat and Rorschach Measu Francis D. Kelly, 2014-01-14 This book offers clinicians a long awaited comprehensive paradigm for assessing object relations functioning in disturbed younger and older adolescents It gives a clear sense of how object relations functioning is manifest in different disorders and illuminates how scores on object relations measures are converted into a therapeutically relevant diagnostic matrix and formulation Outlining the process of object relations assessment Kelly presents vividly detailed cases of a range of disorders including anorexia nervosa borderline states depressive disorders and trauma The cases portray the vicissitudes of object relations functioning and disruption that result in a unique structural developmental composite for a given adolescent A major concern is demonstrating the utility and validity of two object representation measures The Mutuality of Autonomy Scale MOA and The Social Cognition Object Relations Scale SCORS that are the main ones employed in the assessment of adolescents MOA and SCORS scores facilitate a multidimensional understanding of the nuances of an adolescent's object relations functioning and provide clinicians with organized theory based data leading to clear specific treatment directions and guidelines and appropriate therapeutic programming The book addresses the following questions Is individual psychotherapy indicated will this adolescent benefit from an insight oriented approach What are the likely directions that transference parameters will take in the treatment What types of countertransference reactions are likely to be anticipated in a given patient Is medication likely to be helpful in making this adolescent more accessible for treatment Focusing only on adolescents covering both the TAT and the Rorschach and utilizing object relations theory as its major interpretive foundation the book offers practitioners an alternative to general references based on a more actuarial nomothetic and atheoretical interpretive approach It reflects one school of contemporary thought in projective assessment one that advocates a more phenomenological theory based approach to test application and interpretation Psychological and Behavioral Assessment Phyllis R.

Magrab, 2012-12-06 Over the last several decades the remarkable success of science and medical technology has allowed many children with chronic illness and handicapping conditions to live longer and healthier lives But this success is not without toll The human cost of chronic illness or a handicapping condition can be enormous for the child and the family For the family there is often the stressful daily burden of care fatigue marital stress low family morale financial burdens and reduced career mobility For the child there are often arduous and painful treatment regimes frequent school absences low energy periods and uncertainties with respect to future education and vocation The course of many diseases is unpredictable and the very fact of chronicity implies ongoing coping problems for the family and the child The impact of a chronic illness or handicapping condition on a family system is usually more disintegrative than integrative disrupting the lives of all family members and exacerbating the developmental risks to the child It is not surprising that a recent comprehensive study for establishing public policies for children with chronic illness at Vanderbilt University has called attention to these factors and produced as a primary recommendation increased attention to the psychological impact of disease on the family and the child In this context there is an important need for adequate assessment of psychological and behavioral problems in these children to plan for appropriate services

A Theory of Personality Development Luciano L'Abate, 1994 L'Abate's theory is firmly rooted in the social and existential exigencies of everyday life as experienced within the five fundamental contexts of home work leisure the marketplace grocery shopping barbershops malls etc and in transit
