Dictionary of Genocide Paul R. Bartrop, Samuel Totten, 2007-11-30 Over 600 terms identify and explain the history and suffering of ethnic and religious groups experiencing genocide throughout the world The people places governments agencies documents legal terms and all other aspects of genocide are defined for new students and scholars alike A Guide to International Environmental Law Alexandre Charles Kiss, Dinah Shelton, 2007 Guide to International Environmental Law addresses why and how the international system elaborates environmental obligations and monitors compliance with them The book discusses the relationship between international obligations and national and local law with particular reference to federal systems It points out the influence national law has on the emergence of international law and the growing role international norms play in the development and enforcement of national and local environmental policies It also examines the extent to which environmental protection should be and is taken into account in other regulatory frameworks from trade law and human rights to disarmament and refugee policy Genocide Or Ethnocide, 1933-2007 Bartolomé Clavero, 2008 Genocide, Ethnonationalism, and the United Nations Hannibal Travis, 2013-01-17 Genocide Ethnonationalism and the United Nations examines a series of related crises in human civilization growing out of conflicts between powerful states or empires and indigenous or stateless peoples This is the first book to attempt to explore the causes of genocide and other mass killing by a detailed exploration of UN archives covering the period spanning from 1945 through 2011 Hannibal Travis argues that large states and empires disproportionately committed or facilitated genocide and other mass killings between 1945 and 2011 His research incorporates data concerning factors linked to the scale of mass killing and recent findings in human rights political science and legal theory Turning to potential solutions he argues that the concept of genocide imagines a future system of global governance under which the nation state itself is made subject to law

The United Nations however has deflected the possibility of such a cosmopolitical law. It selectively condemns genocide and has established an institutional structure that denies most peoples subjected to genocide of a realistic possibility of global justice. It lacks a robust international criminal tribunal or UN army and even encourages security cooperation among states that have proven to be destructive of peoples in the past. Questions raised include: What have been the causes of mass killing during the period since the United Nations Charter entered into force in 1945? How does mass killing spread across international borders and what is the role of resource wealth, the arms trade and external interference in this process? Have the United Nations or the International Criminal Court faced up to the problem of genocide and other forms of mass killing as is their mandate?

Genocide Adam Jones, 2006-09-27 An invaluable introduction to the subject of genocide explaining its history from pre modern times to the present day with a wide variety of case studies. Recent events in the former Yugoslavia, Rwanda, East Timor and Iraq have demonstrated with appalling clarity that the threat of genocide is still a major issue within world politics. The book examines the differing interpretations of genocide from psychology, sociology, anthropology and political science and analyzes the influence of race, ethnicity, nationalism and gender on genocides. In the final section the author examines how we punish those responsible for waging genocide and how the international community can prevent further bloodshed.

The Crime of All Crimes Nicole Rafter, 2016-03-29 Cambodia, Rwanda, Armenia, Nazi Germany. History remembers these places as the sites of unspeakable crimes against humanity and indisputably of genocide. Yet throughout the twentieth century the world has seen many instances of violence committed by states against certain groups within their borders: from the colonial ethnic cleansing the Germans committed against the Herero tribe in Africa to the Katyn Forest Massacre in which the Soviets shot over 20,000 Poles to anti communist mass murders in 1960s Indonesia. Are mass crimes against humanity like these still genocide? And how can an understanding of crime and criminals shed new light on how genocide, the crime of all crimes, transpires? In The Crime of All Crimes criminologist Nicole Rafter takes an innovative approach to the study of genocide by comparing eight diverse genocides, large scale and small, well known and obscure, through the lens of criminal behavior. Rafter explores different models of genocidal activity, reflecting on the popular use of the Holocaust as a model for genocide and ways in which other genocides conform to different patterns. For instance, Rafter questions the assumption that only ethnic groups are targeted for genocidal cleansing and she also urges that actions such as genocidal rape be considered alongside traditional instances of genocidal violence. Further, by examining the causes of genocide on different levels, Rafter is able to construct profiles of typical victims and perpetrators and discuss means of preventing genocide, in addition to delving into the social psychology of genocidal behavior and the ways in which genocides are brought to an end. A sweeping and innovative investigation into the most tragic of events in the modern world, The Crime of All Crimes will fundamentally change how we think about genocide in the present day.
