Ernest Van Den Haag:

The Death Penalty Ernest Van den Haag, John Phillips Conrad, 2013-06-29 From 1965 until 1980 there was a virtual moratorium on executions for capital offenses in the United States This was due primarily to protracted legal proceedings challenging the death penalty on constitutional grounds After much Sturm und Drang the Supreme Court of the United States by a divided vote finally decided that the death penalty does not invariably violate the Cruel and Unusual Punishment Clause of the Eighth Amendment The Court's decisions however do not moot the controversy about the death penalty or render this excellent book irrelevant The ball is now in the court of the Legislature and the Executive Legislatures federal and state can impose or abolish the death penalty within the guidelines prescribed by the Supreme Court A Chief Executive can commute a death sentence And even the Supreme Court can change its mind as it has done on many occasions and did with respect to various aspects of the death penalty itself during the moratorium period Also the people can change their minds Some time ago a majority according to reliable polls favored abolition Today a substantial majority favors imposition of the death penalty The pendulum can swing again as it has done in the past

A Conversation with Ernest Van Den Haag Tibor R. Machan, Creative Street (Firm), Liberty Fund, 1940-01-01 One of our leading voices in criminology discusses his ongoing work in criminal law and criminology and how his great insights relate to his central belief in a free society

The Death Penalty Louis P. Pojman, Jeffrey Reiman, 2000-01-01 Two distinguished social and political philosophers take opposing positions in this highly engaging work Louis P Pojman justifies the practice of execution by appealing to the principle of retribution we deserve to be rewarded and punished according to the virtue or viciousness of our actions He asserts that the death penalty does deter some potential murderers and that we risk the lives of innocent people who might otherwise live if we refuse to execute those deserving that punishment Jeffrey Reiman argues that although the death penalty is a just punishment for murder we are not morally obliged to execute murderers Since we lack conclusive evidence that executing murderers is an effective deterrent and because we can foster the advance of civilization by demonstrating our intolerance for cruelty in our unwillingness to kill those who kill others Reiman concludes that it is good in principle to avoid the death penalty and bad in practice to impose it

An Eye for an Eye Stephen Nathanson, 2001 The death penalty issue has become the epitome of the unresolvable issue the question which people answer on the basis of gut reactions rather than logical arguments In the second edition of An Eye for an Eye Stephen Nathanson evaluates arguments for and against the death penalty and ultimately defends an abolitionist position to the controversial practice including arguments that show how and why the death penalty is inconsistent with respect for life and a commitment to justice A timely new postscript and an updated bibliography accompany the volume

Debating the Death Penalty Hugo Adam Bedau, Paul G. Cassell, 2005-03-24 Experts on both sides of the issue speak out both for and against capital punishment and the rationale behind their individual beliefs

a passionate belief in the free market religious faith and an aggressive stance on foreign policy Buckley's TV show Firing Line and his campaign for mayor of New York City made him a celebrity his wit and zest for combat made conservatism fun But Buckley was far more than a controversialist Deploying his uncommon charm shrewdly recruiting allies quashing ideological competitors and refusing to compromise on core principles he almost single handedly transformed conservatism from a set of retrograde attitudes into a revolutionary force
