Excursions in Identity Laura Nenzi,2008-04-16 In the Edo period 1600 1868 status and gender based expectations largely defined a person s place and identity in society The wayfarers of the time however discovered that travel provided the opportunity to escape from the confines of the everyday Cultured travelers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries wrote travel memoirs to celebrate their profession as belle lettrists For women in particular the open road and the blank page of the diary offered a precious opportunity to create personal hierarchies defined less by gender and more by culture and refinement After the mid eighteenth century which saw the popularization of culture and the rise of commercial printing textbooks guides comical fiction and woodblock prints allowed not a few commoners to acquaint themselves with the historical lyrical or artistic pedigree of Japan s famous sites By identifying themselves with famous literary and historical icons of the past some among these erudite commoners saw an opportunity to rewrite their lives and re create their identities in the pages of their travel diaries The chapters in Part One Re creating Spaces introduce the notion that the spaces of travel were malleable accommodating reconceptualization across interpretive frames Laura Nenzi shows that far from being static backgrounds these travelscapes proliferated in a myriad of loci where one person s center was another s periphery In Part Two Re creating Identities we see how in the course of the Edo period educated persons used travel to or through revered lyrical sites to assert and enhance their roles and identities Finally in Part Three Purchasing Re creation Nenzi looks at the intersection between recreational travel and the rising commercial economy which allowed visitors to appropriate landscapes through new means monetary transactions acquisition of tangible icons or other forms of physical interaction

Intertwined Lives Lois W. Banner,2010-12-15 A uniquely revealing biography of two eminent twentieth century American women Close friends for much of their lives Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead met at Barnard College in 1922 when Mead was a student Benedict a teacher They became sexual partners though both married and pioneered in the then male dominated discipline of anthropology They championed racial and sexual equality and cultural relativity despite the generally racist xenophobic and homophobic tenor of their era Mead s best selling Coming of Age in Samoa 1928 and Sex and Temperament in Three Primitive Societies 1935 and Benedict s Patterns of Culture 1934 Race 1940 and The Chrysanthemum and the Sword 1946 were landmark studies that ensured the lasting prominence and influence of their authors in the field of anthropology and beyond With unprecedented access to the complete archives of the two women including hundreds of letters opened to scholars in 2001 Lois Banner examines the impact of their difficult childhoods and the relationship between them in the context of their circle of family friends husbands lovers and colleagues as well as the calamitous events of their time She shows how Benedict inadvertently exposed Mead to charges of professional incompetence discloses the serious errors New Zealand anthropologist Derek Freeman made in his famed attack on Mead's research on Samoa and reveals what happened in New Guinea when Mead and colleagues engaged in a ritual aimed at overturning all gender and sexual boundaries In this illuminating and innovative work Banner has given us the most detailed balanced and informative portrait of Mead and Benedict individually and together that we have had From the Hardcover edition

Limited Shakespeare Julián Jiménez Heffernan, 2019-05-01 Shakespeare's poetic dramatic worlds are inescapably limited There is always in his poems and plays a force a contingent drive a pre-textual undertow a rational critical momentum an ironic stance the deflections of error coercing plot and meaning to their end By examining the work of limits in the sonnets and in five of his plays this book seeks not only to highlight the poet's steadfast commitment to critical rationality It also aims to plead a case of hermeneutic continence Present-day appraisals of Shakespeare's world-making and meaning-projecting potential are often overruled by a neo-romantic and phenomenological celebration of plenty This pre-critical tendency unwittingly obtains epistemic legitimation from philosophical quarters inspired by Alain Badiou's derisive rejection of the pathos of finitude But finitude is much more than a modish neo-existentialist watchword It is what is left of ontology when reason is done And cool reason was already at work before Kant In accounting for the way in which Shakespeare places limits to life Romeo and Juliet to experience The Tempest to love the Sonnets to time Macbeth to the world Hamlet and to knowledge Othello Limited Shakespeare The Reason of Finitude aims to underscore the deeply mediated dimension of Shakespearean experience always over-determined by the twin forces of contingency and textual determinism and his meta-rational and virtually ironic taste for irrational accidental and error-driven limits bonds bounds deaths

New Forms of Consumption Mark Gottdiener, 2000 Consumption as a field of cultural studies overlaps with theories of postmodernism the social construction of self commodification in late capitalism and the role of mass media in daily life New forms of consumption such as those facilitated by cyberspace-themed environments the commodification of sex and the increasing role of leisure in society all play new and interesting roles in daily life that combine consumerism with the most contemporary social forms This collection of essays examines the recent ways in which consumerism has been approached by cultural studies with special emphasis given to these and other newly emerging topics The book is divided into three parts The first part provides a theoretical overview of consumption studies dealing with classical and more contemporary approaches in light of the debate between advocates and critics of postmodernism In this section there are papers on McDonaldization tourism and cultural studies and the Theory of Shopping The second part emphasizes empirical studies of the commodification process Papers address the transformation of women's bodies and the mass commodification of milk the creation of the toddler as a subject and the commodification of childhood the commodification of sports and the commodification of rock music The third section of the book explores new forms of consumption on a more detailed and concentrated level Papers in this section include the rise of sex tourism as a global industry the commodification of the sacred and the emergence of new consumer spaces in the city An introduction by the editor delineates the advantages of his approach to new forms of consumption based squarely in the emerging issues of cultural studies debates transcending postmodernism and the society of the spectacle

Lytton Strachey and the Search for Modern Sexual Identity Julie Anne Taddeo, 2012-11-12 Examine Lytton Strachey's struggle to create a new homosexual identity and voice through his life and work This study of Lytton Strachey one of the neglected voices of early twentieth century England uses his life and work to re evaluate early British modernism and the relationship between Strachey's sexual rebellion and literature A perfect ancillary textbook for courses in history literature and women's studies Lytton Strachey and the Search for Modern Sexual Identity The Last Eminent Victorian contributes to the expanding field of queer studies from an historian's perspective It looks at homosexuality through the eyes of Lytton Strachey as opposed to the too often analyzed Oscar Wilde and E M Forster Questioning the idea that homosexuality is a transgressive rebellion as Strachey as well as scholars on Bloomsbury have insisted this volume focuses on the ongoing conflict between Strachey's Victorian notions of class gender and race and his desire to be modern Linking Strachey's life and work to the larger movement of English modernism Lytton Strachey and the Search for Modern Sexual Identity examines Strachey's role at Cambridge before World War I how he created his version of homosexuality out of the Victorian tradition of male romantic friendship his relations with the British Empire as he constructed a rich fantasy life that rested on racial and class differences his friendships and rivalries with the women of Bloomsbury how Strachey's use of sexuality androgyny and history defined and undermined his brand of modernism This thoughtfully indexed well referenced volume looks at Strachey's life in the words of author Julie Anne Taddeo to illustrate some of the issues concerning his generation of Cambridge and Bloomsbury colleagues and how they battled the Victorian ideology often without success It is an essential read for everyone interested in this fascinating chapter in literary and queer history
