

A watercolor painting by Edward Lear titled 'Olive' (1867). The scene depicts a landscape with two large, gnarled trees in the foreground. The tree on the left has a thick trunk with dark, circular holes or knots. The tree on the right is similarly gnarled. In the background, there are rolling hills and a body of water. Several small figures are visible: two people standing near the base of the left tree, and a group of people sitting or standing on a grassy slope in the middle ground. In the bottom right corner, there is a large, shaggy animal, possibly a dog or a bear. The sky is a mix of blue and white washes. The overall style is characteristic of Edward Lear's work, with soft colors and a whimsical, pastoral atmosphere.
