Ethnicity, Race, and Health in Multicultural Societies Raj S Bhopal,2007-01-11 Most of the industrialized world now comprises of multi ethnic societies with people from widely varying ancestry cultures languages and beliefs With globalization of trade increasing international travel and migration the whole world is destined to become multi ethnic within the next 20 or 30 years This poses huge challenges for doctors nurses public health practitioners health care managers and policy makers who have to meet legal and policy obligations to deliver health outcomes and provide health care of equal quality and effectiveness To achieve this they need a solid understanding of the underlying concepts of race and ethnicity and how these are applied to achieve better health for ethnic minority populations They also need to have an awareness of their misuses of these concepts particularly taking into account the history of racism that permeates many societies to this day. Written in non technical language with all terminology explained and defined this book provides an accessible introduction to these complex issues. The key concepts of race and ethnicity are explained including their uses and misuses. The strengths and weaknesses of these concepts in terms of epidemiology policy making health service planning research health care and health promotion are illustrated. The book emphasises theory ideas and principles and its aims are to help counteract the unethical and atheoretical methods often used to study ethnicity. Practical application of the theory is demonstrated through the use of extensive examples. The conceptual frameworks of ethnicity and race required by practitioners and researchers are slightly different including the nature of research questions the relative value of various methods of classification and the approach to data analysis presentation and interpretation and these differences are made explicit. Overall the interdependence of theory and practice is demonstrated making this an ideal foundation text or refresher for those involved in race and ethnicity from a health care perspective.

Climate Change and Liberal Priorities Gideon Calder, Catriona McKinnon, 2013-09-13. Can and should liberalism make itself hospitable to a politics which does justice to climate change? To what extent are the values methods and assumptions of liberalism adaptable to the challenges raised? Liberal thinking broadly construed may dominate the Academy and the political landscape. Are the environmental priorities that are thrown into relief by climate change a threat to it or are they an opportunity for it to show its worth? This book explores fresh arguments by leading scholars both of whom are sceptical of liberalism's capacity to meet these challenges and sympathetic to the project of developing liberal values so as to create a liberal approach that can deliver climate change justice. The chapters appeal to new insights and considerations reveal the complexity of the issues at stake in the real world of climate change politics. They make the political theory of climate change justice available to decision makers whose practice will determine whether we achieve it. This book was previously published as a special issue of Critical Review of International Social and Political Economy.
