G. Jongman, Gloria Pungetti, 2004-07 The establishment of ecological networks in Europe and greenways in America has required some of the most advanced applications of the principles of landscape ecology to land use planning This book provides a thorough overview of recent developments in this emerging field combining theoretical concepts of landscape ecology with the actual practice of landscape planning and management In addition to biological and physical considerations important to biodiversity protection and restoration equal weight is given to cultural and aesthetic issues to illustrate how sympathetic sustainable land use policies can be implemented Examples are given for large scale areas Estonia and Florida as well as regional areas such as Milano Chicago and the Argentinian Yungas This invaluable book will provide a wealth of information for all those concerned with biodiversity conservation through networks and greenways and their relevance to the planning process whether researcher land manager or policy maker Ecological Effects of

Carreiro, Yong-Chang Song, Jianguo Wu, 2007-10-31 It has been increasingly recognized that trees and vegetation in urban areas provide a number of ecological services beyond beautifying cities The purpose of urban forestry is to use trees and natural habitat patches to ameliorate negative environmental impacts of cities and to contribute to the creation of more livable ecological sustainable co cities Ecology Planning and Management of Urban Forests takes an international approach to sharing knowledge about the management of urban forests that has been learned through studies in many different regions This allows the reader to evaluate methods and management that are appropriate for particular geographic environmental and socio political contexts Urban forests are also approached on regional and landscape scales to encompass more natural environments in and around cities rather than within arbitrary municipal boundaries Stream Corridor

Restoration , 1998 This document is a cooperative effort among fifteen Federal agencies and partners to produce a common reference on stream corridor restoration It responds to a growing national and international interest in restoring stream corridors Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forests (N.F.), Proposed Land and Resource Management Plan 2003 , 2004

Management ,2009 Ecosystem Planning in Florida Samuel David Brody,2016-04-29 While ecosystem management requires looking beyond specific jurisdiction and focusing on broad spatial scales most planning decisions particularly in the USA are made at local level By looking at land use planning in Florida this volume recognizes the need for planners and resource managers to address ecosystem problems at local and community levels The factors causing ecosystem decline such as rapid urban development and habitat fragmentation occur at the local level and are generated by local land use policies This book argues that understanding how local jurisdictions can capture and implement the principles of managing natural systems will lead to more sustainable levels of environmental planning in the future Green Infrastructure Mark A.

Environmental Impacts of Mountaineering Michal Apollo, 2021-05-18 This book investigates the consequences of mountaineering hiking trekking climbing on the natural environment These consequences are divided into three groups 1 transformations caused by the mountaineer s or other people s stay in a mountaineering region 2 transformations caused by the mountaineer s travel movement through a mountaineering region with the consideration of the ground type rock rock and grass grass residual soil snow ice and 3 transformations caused by the use of mountaineering equipment Each of the three groups are examined individually for their direct interference with the environment i.e. caused by the main activities of climbing trekking and hiking both for elite and mass mountaineering and their indirect interference caused by auxiliary activity mainly in the case of mass mountaineering Auxiliary activity includes guide services transport of equipment use of base camp facilities and the delivery of artificial support equipment and supports the main activity The consequences of mountaineering on the natural environment are characterized in terms of individual components of the environment land relief soil vegetation fauna and landscape and location zone of mountaineering activity hiking trekking or climbing zone Because of the connections and interdependence between particular components of the environment biotic and abiotic only preservation of each of them can bring the desired effect a reduction in the negative impact of mountaineering This book presents comprehensive research outcomes and serves as a platform for more detailed future studies
