Women's Education in Developing Countries Elizabeth M. King,M. Anne Hill,1997-07-01 Why do women in most developing countries lag behind men in literacy Why do women get less schooling than men This anthology examines the educational decisions that deprive women of an equal education It assembles the most up to date data organized by region Each paper links the data with other measures of economic and social development This approach helps explain the effects different levels of education have on women's fertility mortality rates life expectancy and income Also described are the effects of women's education on family welfare The authors look at family size and women's labor status and earnings They examine child and maternal health as well as investments in children's education Their investigation demonstrates that women with a better education enjoy greater economic growth and provide a more nurturing family life It suggests that when a country denies women an equal education the nation s welfare suffers Current strategies used to improve schooling for girls and women are examined in detail The authors suggest an ambitious agenda for educating women It seeks to close the gender gap by the next century Published for The World Bank by The Johns Hopkins University Press Perspectives on Global
