Alcohol fuels policy United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee. Subcommittee on Energy,1980 Energy resources and economic development in India W.E. Tyner,2012-12-06 The purpose of this research has been to explore the relationship between energy resource development and economic development in India The thesis which evolved from the research is that energy resource development has lagged behind and constrained economic development in India Inadequate attention has been paid to developing the power sector and the petroleum sector is just beginning to be developed This research consists of an analysis of energy supply covering each of the major energy resources Using information from India s five year plans the history of energy re source development was compiled by energy sector A comprehensive evaluation of India s current position with respect to energy resources was undertaken to provide a perspective on future development possibilities Alternative policy options were presented in the analysis of each energy resource These options were considered in providing a set of overall policy suggestions for development of energy supplies in India Dedication This volume is dedicated to my wonderful wife Jean who patiently endured the weeks months and years it took to complete No words can express my feelings for her and the sacrifices she has made but this token gesture is the least I can do Acknowledgements This research was done under the supervision of Professor John Adams

Utilities Reform in Twenty-First Century Australia Malcolm Abbott, Bruce Cohen, 2021-07-01 Utilities Reform in 21st Century Australia Providing the Essentials traces the development and consequences of the economic reform measures undertaken in the utilities sector in Australia communications energy water wastewater services and transport in the last years of the 20th century and early decades of the 21st century In doing so it looks at the process of reform across industries and across the state and federal jurisdictions to identify what motivations the various governments had for pursuing reform how change varied across jurisdictions and what issues arose in the process Although by the mid 1990s all states and territories and the Australian Government were committed to reforming utilities as part of the National Competition Policy not all pursued this reform with the same degree of speed and breadth of action The broad trends of economic reform in Australia and abroad are also touched upon to provide an outline of the wider context in which the reform of the utilities occurred This book therefore explores the relationship between politics and society on the one hand and economic reform on the other as well on as the efforts of governments in Australia to promote economic growth and the wealth of Australians in an increasingly complex and challenging global economic climate

But Will the Planet Notice? Gernot Wagner, 2025-03-14 You are one of seven billion people on Earth Whatever you or I do personally eat tofu in a Hummer or hamburgers in a Prius the planet doesn't notice In our confrontation with climate change species preservation and a planet going off the cliff it is what several billion people do that makes a difference The solution It isn't science politics or activism It's smarter economics The hope of mankind and indeed of every living thing on the planet is now in the hands of the dismal science Fortunately we've been there before Economists helped crack the acid rain problem in the 1990s admittedly with a strong assist from a phalanx of lawyers and activists Economists have helped get lead out of our gas and they can explain why lobsters haven't disappeared off the coast of New England but tuna is on the verge of extinction More disquietingly they can take the lessons of the financial crisis and model with greater accuracy than anyone else the likelihood of environmental catastrophe and they can help save us from global warming if only we let them

Prospective Evaluation of Applied Energy Research and Development at DOE (Phase Two) National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee on Prospective Benefits of DOE's Energy Efficiency and Fossil Energy R&D Programs (Phase Two), 2007-08-17 Since its inception in 1977 from an amalgam of federal authorities the U S Department of Energy DOE has administered numerous programs aimed at developing applied energy technologies In recent years federal oversight of public expenditures has emphasized the integration of performance and budgeting Notably the Government Performance and Results Act GPRA was passed in 1993 in response to questions about the value and effectiveness of federal programs GPRA and other mandates have led agencies to develop indicators of program performance and program outcomes The development of indicators has been watched with keen interest by Congress which has requested of the National Research Council NRC a series of reports using quantitative indicators to evaluate the effectiveness of applied energy research and development R D The first such report took a retrospective view of the first 3 years of DOE R D programs on fossil energy and energy efficiency The report found that DOE sponsored research had netted large commercial successes such as advanced refrigerator compressors electronic lighting ballasts and emission control technology for flue gas desulfurization However some programs were judged to be costly failures in which large R D expenditures did not result in a commercial energy technology A follow up NRC committee was assigned the task of adapting the methodology to the assessment of the future payoff of continuing programs Evaluating the outcome of R D expenditures requires an analysis of program costs and benefits Doing so is not a trivial matter First the analysis of costs and benefits must reflect the full range of public benefits that are envisioned accounting for environmental and energy security impacts as well as economic effects Second the analysis must consider how likely the research is to succeed and how valuable the research will be if successful Finally the analysis must consider what might happen if the government did not support the project Would some non DOE entity undertake it or an equivalent activity that would produce some or all of the benefits of government involvement This second report continues to investigate the development and use of R D outcome indicators and applies the benefits evaluation methodology to six DOE R D activities It provides further definition for the development of indicators for environmental and security benefits and refines the evaluation process based on its experience with the six DOE R D case studies

Nuclear Power in India David Hart, 2019-03-28 Originally published in 1983 The Indian nuclear power programme both the earliest in the Third World and also one of the most comprehensive is an important and instructive subject for a wide ranging and detailed study This book examines the origins and rationale of the Indian programme in the context of energy resources and consumption It traces the progress of its historical development and leads up to an evaluation of its performance in both technical and economic terms of both individual reactors and the programme as a whole In addition the book discusses India s nuclear explosion of 1974 and the possibilities for novel developments in nuclear power and other energy sources such as coal biogas hydro and solar power The author then sets the Indian programme into the world picture by comparing developments in India with those of the Third World including developments in China and South Africa and discusses the overall prospects for the Third World This extremely informative account will appeal to readers with interest in energy science technology and Third World developments
