Electronic Properties of Fullerenes and other Novel Materials gives an overview of the state of the art research It presents most recent results on preparation experimental analysis by electron spectroscopy infrared and Raman spectroscopy luminescence and nonlinear optical as well as possible technological applications Emphasis is also placed on the superconducting properties of Fullerenes The introductory and advanced contributions provide a good survey of the current status of this rapidly developing field Science and Technology of Fullerene Materials. Materials Research Society Symposium Proceedings Held in Boston, Massachusetts on November 28-December 2, 1994, 1994 This volume contains the proceedings of the symposium Science and Technology of fullerene Materials held at the 1994 MRS Fall Meeting in Boston from November 28 to December 2 This symposium was international in character and was planned to provide a multidisciplinary discussion of all levels of fullerene based materials science with a special focus on new technological advances in the development and application of fullerenes and related materials The symposium comprised 21 invited talks and 113 contributed oral and poster presentations broadly covering both experimental and theoretical results of the ongoing efforts to create characterize and find applications for fullerenes and related novel carbon materials The diversity of conditions leading to fullerene formation was demonstrated by reports showing that flame production of fullerenes is quite practical that a solar furnace can make fullerenes and that fullerenes are prominent in certain regions of ordinary candle flames Similarly production of carbon nanotubes was reported not only in cathodic deposits but also in flame soots pyrolysis products of hydrocarbons soot produced by laser vaporization of graphite and in arc fullerene generators with added metal catalysts Other nanotube papers focused on purification and on field emission from nanotube tips as a factor controlling the arc plasma during growth and a potentially useful phenomenon enabling fabrication of novel cold cathode field emitters Fullerene like particles and nanotubes based on non carbon layer compounds such BN and MoS and its analogs were reported jg p 12
