Kassanoff, 2004-09-16 Kassanoff shows how Wharton participated in debates on race class and democratic pluralism at the turn of the twentieth century The Figure of Consciousness Jill M. Kress, 2013-08-21 Through analysis of metaphors of consciousness in the philosophy and fiction of William James Henry James and Edith Wharton this work traces the significance of representations of knowledge gender and social class revealing how writers conceived of the self in modern Class and the Making of American Literature Andrew Lawson, 2014-03-14 This book refocuses current understandings of American Literature from the revolutionary period to the present day through an analytical accounting of class reestablishing a foundation for discussions of class in American culture American Studies scholars have explored the ways in which American society operates through inequality and modes of social control focusing primarily on issues of status group identities involving race ethnicity gender sexuality and disability. The essays in this volume focus on both the historically changing experience of class and its continuing hold on American life The collection visits popular as well as canonical literature recognizing that class is constructed in and mediated by the affective and the sensational It analyzes class division class difference and class identity in American culture enabling readers to grasp why class matters as well as the economic social and political matter of class Redefining the field of American literary cultural studies and asking it to rethink its preoccupation with race and gender as primary determinants of identity contributors explore the disciplining of the laboring body and of the emotions the political role of the novel in contesting the limits of class power and authority and the role of the modern consumer culture in both blurring and sharpening class divisions Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett, 2013-03-01 For a work to be considered African American literature does it need to focus on black characters or political themes Must it represent these within a specific stylistic range Or is it enough for the author to be identified as African American In Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett traces the shifting definitions of African American literature and the authors who wrote beyond those boundaries at the cost of critical dismissal and at times obscurity From the late nineteenth century to the end of the twentieth de facto deans critics and authors as different as William Howells Alain Locke Richard Wright and Amiri Baraka prescribed the shifting parameters of realism and racial subject matter appropriate to authentic African American literature while truant authors such as Paul Laurence Dunbar George S Schuyler Frank Yerby and Toni Morrison perhaps the most celebrated African American author of the twentieth century wrote literature anomalous to those standards Jarrett explores the issues at stake when Howells the Dean of American Letters argues in 1896 that only Dunbar's entirely black verse written in dialect would succeed Three decades later Locke the cultural arbiter of the Harlem Renaissance stands in contrast to Schuyler a journalist and novelist who questions the existence of a peculiarly black or New Negro art Next Wright's 1937 blueprint for African American writing sets the terms of the Chicago Renaissance but Yerby's version of historical romance approaches race and realism in alternative literary ways Finally Deans and Truants measures the gravitational pull of the late 1960s Black Aesthetic in Baraka's editorial silence on Toni Morrison's first and only short
