Frontline Nationalism In Angola And Mozambique:

Frontline Nationalism in Angola & Mozambique David Birmingham, 1992 A collection of historical ideas about the struggle to build nations on the frontiers of South Africa Regional Guide to International Conflict and Management from 1945 to 2003 Jacob Bercovitch, Judith Fretter, 2004-11-23 Regional Guide to International Conflict Management from 1945 to 2003 provides global regional and specific information on the over 350 international conflicts that have occurred since World War II At the heart of the book are comprehensive regional sections each of which includes An essay providing regional context and highlighting the interrelation of countries and conflict in that area Summaries of each conflict in the region arranged chronologically and covering history circumstances players management and outcome References for further research Introductory chapters examine global patterns and trends in international conflict and how conflict is managed including ethnic conflict and the expanded role of the United Nations Tables figures maps and a comprehensive index round out this valuable resource Regional Guide to International Conflict and Management from 1945 to 2003 gives readers the tools and content necessary for understanding and analyzing international conflict in today s world Perfect for political science comparative government politics international relations and world history programs Historical Dictionary of Portugal Douglas L. Wheeler, Walter C. Opello Jr., 2010-05-10 Portugal is a small Western European nation with a large distinctive past replete with both triumph and tragedy One of the continent s oldest nation states Portugal has frontiers that are essentially unchanged since the late 14th century The country s unique character and 850 year history as an independent state present several curious paradoxes As of 1974 when much of the remainder of the Portuguese overseas empire was decolonized Portuguese society appeared to be the most ethnically homogeneous of the two Iberian states and of much of Europe This in spite of the fact that Portuguese society had received during 2 000 years of infusions of other ethnic groups in invasions and immigration Phoenicians Greeks Celts Romans Suevi Visigoths Muslims Arab and Berber Jews Italians Flemings Burgundian French black Africans and Asians Indeed Portugal has been a crossroads despite its relative isolation in the western corner of the Iberian Peninsula between the West and North Africa Tropical Africa and Asia and America Since 1974 Portugal s society has become less homogeneous as there has been significant immigration of former subjects from her erstwhile overseas empire The third edition of Historical Dictionary of Portugal greatly expands on the second edition through a chronology an introductory essay a bibliography and hundreds of cross referenced dictionary entries on important persons places events and institutions as well as on significant political economic social and cultural aspects World Directory of Minorities Bridget Anderson, James Chin, John Connell, Patrick Costello, Lindsey Crickmay, Chris Dammers, James Ferguson, David Hawk, David McDowall, Anna Matveeva, Julia Maxted, Neil Melvin, Peter O'Neill, Suzanne Pattle, Martyn Rady, Javaid Rehman, Alex Roslin, Nikhil Roy, David Sogge, Bogdan Szajkowski, Carl Wilson, Abebe Zegeye, 1997-01-01 This publication is the first version of the World Directory of Minorities and Indigenous Peoples published in 1997 The full Directory is now available and continually updated on our website The large majority of violent conflicts in the world today are conflicts within states with groups polarized across ethnic and religious divides and not across borders Ethnic religious and linguistic minorities are often among the poorest of the poor suffer discrimination and are frequently the victims of human rights abuses Time and time again in the past the United Nations system governments and even non governmental organizations NGOs working in the field of conflict prevention have failed to promote the human rights of minorities or to take early action to promote cooperation between communities Early action may have prevented the loss of millions of lives in many countries ranging from Rwanda to the former Yugoslavia and from Sri Lanka to Guatemala It is also significant that the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to the Dalai Lama in 1989 and to Jose Ramos Horta and Bishop Carlos Belo in 1996 as a result of their peaceful campaigns to promote the rights of their people The situation of minorities is then a matter of major concern and it is essential that accurate objective and up to date information is made available This Directory contributes to that process It is difficult to assess accurately what proportion of the world s population identify themselves as belonging to minority communities Conservative estimates place this above 10 per cent and some suggest that more than 20 per cent of the world s population belongs to several thousand different minority groups and subgroups National statistics are often skewed for political reasons and there is no universally accepted definition of minorities The word has different interpretations in different societies throughout the world while the United Nations General Assembly has not sought to reach a definition beyond that implied in the title of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Persons belonging to National or Ethnic Religious and Linguistic Minorities adopted in December 1992 Minority Rights Group focuses its work on non dominant ethnic religious and linguistic communities whether or not they are numerical minorities The concept thus relates to any self identified community that is marginalized without power unable to take decisions over its destiny and often experiencing high levels of illiteracy under education and overt or covert discrimination The basic rights of such communities need protection and promotion There is however a danger of generalizing about minorities and forgetting the complexity of their social composition including the rural poor urban migrants older people women and children These groups may be considered as doubly vulnerable What makes their situation particularly problematic is that there is often a deliberate political policy on the part of majorities and states not to give due regard to the legitimate interests of minorities while members of minorities see their identity as central to their social and economic situation They are often excluded from political power and decision making in the development process without equal opportunities to secure a better quality of life One further danger may lie in regarding ethnicities as fixed rather than as the potentially fluid phenomena that they often are Situational ethnicity does occur and individuals and groups do modify their self identifications depending on circumstances Please note that the terminology in the fields of minority rights and indigenous peoples rights has changed over time MRG strives to reflect these changes as well as respect the right to self identification on the part of minorities and indigenous peoples At the same time after over 50 years work we know that our archive is of considerable interest to activists and researchers Therefore we make available as much of our back catalogue as possible while being aware that the language used may not reflect current thinking on these issues

Paving the Way Ronald J. Fisher,2005-01-04 This first of a kind collection brings together in one volume the strongest available evidence of successful transfer effects from unofficial third party work to official peacemaking Using comparative case analysis from several real world interventions Paving the Way offers insights into the conditions and qualities of successful programs of interactive conflict resolution from experts in the field Editor Ronald J Fisher has assembled a collection of seminal case studies that illustrate interactive approaches to conflict resolution from the Malaysia Indonesia conflict in the 1960s to the Peru Equador peace process of the late 1990s Integrating theory research and practice the cases posit that interactive conflict resolution can make a significant and sometimes essential contribution to the resolution of protracted and violent identity conflicts The methods and solutions offered in Paving the Way will serve as best practices for those in the field and as training tools and resources for scholars and policymakers

The Capacity to Share A. Hickling-Hudson, J. González, R. Preston, 2012-09-03 This discussion of Cuba's international policies in education shows how Cuba shares its educational resources with other countries The postcolonial critique underlying the book explores Cuba's role in relation to how the disengagement from colonial legacies in education is taking place in many countries

Norway and National Liberation in Southern Africa Tore Linné Eriksen, Nordiska Afrikainstitutet, 2000 This book documents and analyses the involvement of Norway in the liberation struggle in Southern Africa Apart from focussing on the formulation of official policies and the extensive cooperation with the liberation movements in the field of humanitarian assistance mainly based on the Ministry of Foreign Affairs records the study highlights the popular involvement and commitment to the struggle Separate chapters are concerned with the churches trade unions and solidarity movements such as the Norwegian Council for Southern Africa and the Namibia Committee The book also includes a case study on the battle for sanctions The Study forms part of the Nordic Africa Institute's research and documentation project National Liberation in Southern Africa The Role of the Nordic Countries

Transnational Histories of Southern Africa's Liberation Movements Jocelyn Alexander, JoAnn McGregor, Blessing-Miles Tendi, 2020-05-21 Transnational Histories of Southern Africa's Liberation Movements offers new perspectives on southern Africa's wars of national liberation drawing on extensive oral historical and archival research Assuming neither the primacy of nationalist loyalties as they exist today nor any single path to liberation the book unpicks any notion of a straightforward imposition of Cold War ideologies or strategic interests on liberation wars This approach adds new dimensions to the rich literatures on the Global Cold War and on solidarity movements The contributors trace the ways that ideas and practices were made adopted and circulated through time and space through a focus on African soldiers politicians and diplomats The book also asks what motivated the men and women who crossed borders to join liberation movements how Cold War influences were acted upon interpreted and used and why certain moments venues and relations took on exaggerated importance The connections among liberation movements between them and their hosts and across an extraordinarily diverse set of external actors reveal surprising exchanges and lasting legacies that have too often been obscured by the assertion of monolithic national histories Tracing an extraordinarily diverse set of interactions and exchanges Transnational Histories of Southern Africa's Liberation Movements will be of great interest to scholars of Southern Africa Transnational History the Cold War and African Politics The chapters were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Southern African Studies
