Christopher A. Smith, 2022-08-11 Textbooks are indispensable components and in some case the cornerstones of the mission of English Language Teaching (ELT) However they are artefacts of a pedagogical culture that rarely echo the concerns of their most prolific consumers teachers and students This book offers a useful framework for evaluating ELT textbooks from a critical discourse perspective one that is based on sound current research but also offers practical guidance to teachers Building from a foundational understanding of ELT textbooks the author presents a systematic procedure to critically analyze their multimodal discourse examine how those discourses are negotiated between teachers and students in class and measure how those consumers privately value the lessons The book provides teachers with the tools they need to select and adapt materials based on critical multimodal discourse analysis where not only the text but the pictures websites audio visual elements too are subjected to a process which can reveal underlying ideologies assumptions omissions and reifications The triangulated approach demonstrated in a series of vignettes featuring Korean university students and native English speaking instructors can inform textbook choice instigate change and inspire lesson re-contextualization to best suit the needs of its primary consumers Bibliography of Asian Studies, 1995 No Uncertain Terms, 1991 International Books in

Frontier in Korean as a Foreign Language Ho-min Sohn,1995 田口 洋子,1993 Topics in Korean Language and Linguistics Ho-min Sohn,2013 The Emerging Monoculture Eric Kramer,2003-02-28 Kramer brings together experts from a variety of minority backgrounds and from around the world to give their perspectives on the most pervasive ideology today globalism The basic premise is that a developed country is different from a developed community They need not be mutually exclusive but neither is it assumed that they are necessarily consonant The various essays offer answers to such vital questions as What does it mean to become a global citizen and What does it mean to be a model minority in a global economy The process of becoming a mainstream person involves being first marginalized with the implication that something is inadequate about one's self The process of assimilationism is manifested as various forms of enforced and or rewarded acculturation With the vast human migration currently underway the notion of assimilation has become a global phenomenon What is occurring Kramer and his colleagues demonstrate is a worldwide shift from the village milieu to the city lifestyle This migration is seen as a polycentric and global phenomenon whereby the promised land is nowhere in particular but instead a way of life and mindset an urban lifestyle This process is far more than a simple change in geography Moving from the village to the cityscape involves a mutation in worldview and self identity Additional questions asked throughout the collection are What set of persuasive assumptions are leading the world in this direction and What might be lost in the process A provocative collection for scholars students and other researchers involved with development studies multiculturalism and urbanization International Handbook of Reading Education Betty J. Eller,John Hladczuk,1992-07-27 As major political and social changes continue to sweep through the countries of the world and more and more nations move toward forms of social democracy the importance of being able to read has taken on a new urgency The burden of government commerce education and social welfare is moving increasingly toward the individual and with it the need to turn basic reading skills into the sophisticated ability to analyze comprehend and debate the whole world of language in front of him This book offers an opportunity to see how the process of learning to read is being handled in a broad cross section of countries in the world representing the First Second and Third Worlds Each of the twenty six country surveys has been written by an international scholar indigenous to that land and follows the same basic pattern in examining reading education Following a brief introduction to the nation and its particular educational characteristics ten reading associated factors are fully discussed and analyzed These factors include the language of the country in question its reading policy the goals of reading illiteracy issues pertaining to the rate and diagnosis of reading disabilities reading readiness programs the teacher qualification procedure the source and availability of materials in reading the financing of reading education and research thrusts in the field of reading Each chapter then concludes with a summary and brief bibliography of important reference sources within that country This unique study will be an essential reference tool for students and practitioners in the fields of education and reading literacy as well as a valuable addition to both public and academic libraries Subject Guide to Books in Print

,1996 Educational Practices in China, Korea, and the United States Chuang Wang, Lan Kolano, Do-Hong Kim, 2020-03-01 This book is written by a diverse cohort of both of American educators including professors teachers school counselors and school administrators from pre K to college levels Most of the contributors come from disciplinary areas of English as a second language and school administration With the pressure of Common Core State Standards Initiative American educators are now shifting their focus to standards based instruction Meanwhile Chinese educators are moving away from national standards and developing state level curriculum and instruction to meet specific needs of the students in local provinces There is also a debate about whether or not to use the National College Entrance Examination as the only test for college admission Some provinces e g Zhejiang and Hubei are administering their own college entrance examinations The book outlines the sociocultural roots of education in the three countries linking the tradition and philosophical orientations to each country s own history of education Furthermore the book compares and contrasts the curriculum especially the teaching of English as a second foreign language in three countries This book examines the stress of students physical education various pedagogical styles in foreign language education as well as instructional texts and cross cultural dialogue between teachers Additionally the book explores factors that influence parent s involvement and women s educational and career aspirations Lastly the book presents modern technologies such as smart learning technologies and online learning platforms not only to facilitate future educational systems but also to promote international exchanges The chapters of the book are thematically diverse but they help to provide inspirations for educators both in American and Asian countries The findings offer alternative practical lenses for educational community to seek for some middle ground between Chinese South Korea and American education The intended audience for this book is graduate students teachers administrators and professionals in education
