The Economic Future of City and Suburb David L. Birch, Committee for Economic Development, 1970      The Economic Future of City and Suburb David L. Birch, Committee for Economic Development, 1970      The economic Future of city and suburb David L. Birch, 1972      The Central City Problem and Urban Renewal Policy, a Study Prepared ... for the Subcommittee on Housing and Urban.... United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, 1973      The Dynamics of Neighborhood Change James Mitchell, Real Estate Research Corporation. Public Affairs Counseling, 1975 This document has evolved over three years to meet the need for a more comprehensive understanding of how neighborhoods change The Office of Policy Development and Research at HUD formulated policy alternatives to stem the rising tide of abandoned residential buildings It showed abandonment as the last stage of a process not a random or isolated phenomenon The failure of programs to counteract and halt the decline of neighborhoods has stemmed mainly from an imperfect understanding of this process There have also been political problems with acting in neighborhoods before the symptoms were painfully evident and from the tendency of program developers to deal with the house rather than the people who own it rent it loan on it or insure it Few programs have recognized that those people were part of a total neighborhood rather than occupants of individual buildings The process of neighborhood change is triggered and fueled by individual collective and institutional decisions These are made by a myriad of people households bankers real estate brokers investors speculators public service providers police fire schools sanitation etc and others It is a reasonable conclusion that if a concentrated effort is made to affect these decisions then neighborhood decline can be slowed halted or in some circumstances reversed      Analysis of Neighborhood Decline in Urban Areas George Sternlieb, James W. Norton, 2013-10-22 City Life Cycles and American Urban Policy is an interdisciplinary study of differential urban development in the United States since 1945 that aims to place urban policy choices in historical perspective The book discusses the issues and establishes a framework within which relevant quantitative measurements can be interpreted The text also describes systematic empirical tests which typically take the form of regression equations and traces city population changes into two proximate causes annexation and urban growth The reasons for annexation contrasts among the nation's largest cities the second city growth determinant and the institutional explanation for fiscal differential among large cities are also considered The book further tackles the issue of federal fiscal assistance to declining cities Economists will find the book invaluable      Planning Frontiers in Rural America

Keeping the Faith Abel A. Bartley, 2000-04-30 An examination of the political and economic power of a large African American community in a segregated southern city this study attacks the myth that blacks were passive victims of the southern Jim Crow system and reveals instead that in Jacksonville Florida blacks used political and economic pressure to improve their situation and force politicians to make moderate adjustments in the Jim Crow system Bartley tells the compelling story of how African Americans first gained then lost then regained political representation in Jacksonville Between the end of the Civil War and the consolidation of city and county government in 1967 the political struggle was buffeted by the ongoing effort to build an economically viable African American economy in the virulently racist South It was the institutional complexity of the African American community that ultimately made the protest efforts viable Black leaders relied on the institutions created during Reconstruction to buttress their social agitation Black churches schools fraternal organizations and businesses underpinned the civil rights activities of community leaders by supplying the people and the evidence of abuse that inflamed the passions of ordinary people The sixty year struggle to break down the door blocking political power serves as an intriguing backdrop to community development efforts Jacksonville s African American community never accepted their second class status From the beginning of their subjugation they fought to remedy the situation by continuing to vote and run for offices while they developed their economic and social institutions
