Goat Alley Ernest Howard Culbertson, 2015-08-04 Excerpt from Goat Alley A Tragedy of Negro Life In a dingy little hall on a side street Mr Ernest Howard Culbertson began rehearsals of Goat Alley his tragedy of Negro life in a Washington slum The actors were with one exception amateurs colored working people who gave their time and services for the sake of what they felt to be an artistic expression of the life of their race The author had no sociological intention he had no ambition to be a propagandist He had not even a special interest in the racial problem He thought that he had come upon an action that has the quality of tragic inevitableness He thought furthermore that tragedy does not reside in pomp and circumstance but in the profound realities of human helpfulness and human suffering and that poor Lucy Belle struggling to maintain her spiritual integrity in Goat Alley was a protagonist worthy of the sternest art and the largest sympathy He built up his action from within He saw that the Negro cannot yet hope like the white man to transcend common standards He must first reach them Hence the Negro girl's struggle for her own integrity is not yet the struggle of Nora or Magda the struggle to be true to her self it is the struggle to remain true to the man of her real choice To transcend a necessary order one must first have achieved it About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at
