Global Plan For Employment A New Marshall Plan:

Global Marshall Plan James A. Yunker, 2014-08-14 Today's foreign aid programs are small scale because of the widespread belief that they are ineffective. This could be an example of a self-fulfilling prophecy: small scale virtually guarantees ineffectiveness. However, the pervasive contemporary pessimism regarding global economic inequality is most likely unfounded. The research described in this book suggests that a properly designed and sufficiently massive economic development assistance project, a Global Marshall Plan, could tremendously reduce the economic gap between the richest and poorest nations within a 50-year planning period. Enrichment of the poor nations would not entail impoverishment of the rich nations. The actual cost of the GMP program to the populations of the rich nations would be a very slight and virtually unnoticeable reduction in the rate of growth of their living standards. The model incorporates features suggested by the skeptical literature on foreign aid, and it is shown that if certain key parameter values are sufficiently adverse, the GMP would indeed be ineffective. However, extensive sensitivity analysis demonstrates that the optimistic benchmark results are robust against wide variations in the numerical values of most model parameters. The fundamental policy implication of this research is that only an actual real-world experiment with a Global Marshall Plan could reliably determine whether or not it would be successful.

Global Plan for Employment Angelos Theodorou Angelopoulos, 1983-01-01 Global Visions of Olof Palme, Bruno Kreisky and Willy Brandt B. Vivekanandan, 2016-09-27 This book analyses the global visions of Olof Palme, Bruno Kreisky, and Willy Brandt, European social democratic statesmen who earned international esteem for their contributions to global developments during the second half of the twentieth century. Their visions encompassed inter alia international peace and security, East-West and North-South Cooperation, and other important domains pertinent to developing countries of Asia, Africa, and Latin America. In this volume, the author closely examines the advancements Palme, Kreisky, and Brandt made and demonstrates how their visions remain valid for shaping the future of mankind.

New Technologies and Development Ann Johnston, Albert Sasson, 1986 China's Global Reach Suisheng Zhao, 2020-06-09 China's Global Reach looks at China's emergence on the globe as a hegemonic power in the recent years. Moving beyond Volume I, this new volume empirically examines the most recent development of the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), the two most important initiatives launched by President Xi Jinping as China tries to emerge as a global power. The first part of the book presents an overview of geo-strategic development of the two initiatives. The second part examines domestic political dynamics, particularly Xinjiang, as the core of BRI in these two initiatives. The third part investigates the responses from the major foreign partners involved in the two initiatives, with a focus on the responses from India, African, and Middle East countries. The chapters in this book were originally published in various issues of the Journal of Contemporary China.

Dramatic Global Population Growth Embraces the Growing Older Population Edward A. McKinney, 2018-11-16 The world is witnessing a dramatic demographic population growth.

explosion across all age groups that had its beginning around the early 1800s when the first billion people in population was recorded. Most importantly, there has been an increasing growth in the older population. Does population aging matter in the twenty-first century? Yes, it matters because, as research has pointed out, the increasing older population globally will have a significant impact on all essential societal systems: the family, pensions and retirement, and financial institutions, as well as medical health and social systems. This growth explosion or phenomenon will affect all continents, countries, and regions regardless of economic, political, and military power. Causative factors for this global growth in population have come about primarily as a result of medical advances, innovations, agricultural development, and the industrial revolution, especially the development of railways, seaways, and highways. A major emphasis of the book focuses on several very important factors: the growing older population, as aforementioned, especially its impact on all of essential societal systems, and the subject of ageism. Ageism becomes extremely important considering that the growing older population, the silver tsunami, represents the new majority. This new majority will no longer be ignored. Gerontologists for years have attempted to call attention to the fact. Expectations for old people are based on negative age stereotypes. Members of American society generally expect and even encourage the aged to be asexual, intellectually rigid, unproductive, ineffective, and disengaged. Seniors are supposed to stay out of the way, sit in their rocking chairs, and enjoy the golden years. They are expected to be inactive, invisible, but happy.

Levin J and Levin W. Ageism: Prejudice and Discrimination Against the Elderly. California: Wadsworth Publishing, 1941. pp. 97-98.

Speaking of being ignored, why aren't more members of the older population involved at the decision-making tables in shaping a society for all ages? After all, they would bring years of experiences, skills, knowledge, and values for creating a society for all ages in the twenty-first century with justice and human rights for all. Currently, there is a global movement with a goal of the eradication of ageism in all of its forms. Some will recall from several decades ago the Grey Panther Movement in America with a similar mission of the eradication of all injustices at the time being experienced by the older population. The current movement says, "The time is now, not later." One major social injustice being experienced by the growing old population globally is the lack of income security in old age, including the lack of access to other essential services such as medical health and social, including long-term care. More than 50 percent, 51 percent of older persons globally do not have basic income security or a social pension in retirement. A more alarming statistic is that in Sub-Saharan Africa, forty-seven countries, 82.5 percent of retirees do not have a social pension. Yes, for the older population, the new majority, the time is now for correcting the aforementioned injustices. Maybe what is needed is a human seismic force comprising the new majority to initiate a social movement with a goal of the eradication of all forms of ageism and ensuring that the growing older population will live in dignity and respect in later life, including social protection, pensions.

in which they sought refuge with numerous Holocaust escapees attaining prominence as scientists writers filmmakers and artists But what is less well known is the way in which this refugee diaspora shaped the scholarly culture of their new found homes and international policy In this unique work David Simon explores the pioneering role played by mostly Jewish refugee scholars in the creation of development studies and practice following the Second World War and what we can learn about the discipline by examining the social and intellectual history of its early practitioners Through in depth interviews with key figures and their relatives Simon considers how the escapees experiences impacted their scholarship showing how they played a key role in shaping their belief that development really did hold the potential to make a better world free from the horrors of war genocide and discrimination they had experienced under Nazi rule In the process he casts valuable new light on the origins and evolution of development studies policy and practice from this formative postwar period to the present
