Global Restructuring And Land Rights In Ghana

Horman Chitonge, Ross Harvey

Global Restructuring And Land Rights In Ghana:

Global Restructuring and Land Rights in Ghana Kojo Amanor, 1999 The report highlights the long history of commodification of land and labour in Ghana linked to speculative activities and more recently to the activities of international capital agribusiness international agricultural centres and agencies of the state It makes the case for a new land agrarian and natural resource regime that prioritises domestic economic needs to provide security of livelihood to the generality of the people

Large-Scale Land Acquisition in Ghana Kristina Lanz, 2022-04-27 This book examines a large scale land acquisition project for rice production in Ghana's Volta Region which has been purported by some to be a social and ecological showcase of a company entering a community private partnership with affected communities Celebrated by national and international media the project has received substantial amounts of funding from various donor organisations and claims to empower women through its much lauded outgrower project Although discourses of development sustainability and women's empowerment are used by the investment company the state and the customary authorities to legitimise the large scale land acquisition this book highlights how the deal benefits mainly the powerful elite including elite women and generally increases the depreciation of those already most marginalised such as poor female headed households and settler communities that were dependent on resources from the commons now enclosed and transformed into a rice farm The author adopts a New Institutional perspective in social anthropology in order to analyse how this land acquisition has been implemented in a plural institutional context and how different actors use different rules and regulations and associated legitimating discourses to increase their bargaining power and to pursue their own interests in a changing legal context In addition this perspective shows how benefits and losses are distributed along different intersecting axes of power such as class gender clan membership and age By focusing on power gender and legitimisation strategies in the context of institutional change caused by the large scale land acquisition this book fills a gap in the literature on large scale land acquisitions while contributing to the development of a theoretical perspective on institutional change power relations and ideological legitimisation This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of land and resource grabbing agricultural development and agribusiness land management and development studies more broadly

Land and the Politics of Belonging in West Africa, 2005-12-01 Recognizing that land rights are ambiguous negotiable and politically embedded these case studies explore the long term processes and recent changes in contemporary rural West Africa affecting the conversion of control over land into social and political capital and vice versa They point to the colonial origins of what came to be viewed as customary tenure and to the legal pluralism characterizing pre colonial tenure arrangements Furthermore they show the spiritual and ritual importance of land that can be converted into political power and economic prerogatives a dimension neglected by much of the recent literature Analyses cover forest and savannah state and segmentary societies facilitating comparison and insights across the Anglo Francophone divide

and Food Security in Africa Prosper B. Matondi, Kjell Havnevik, Atakilte Beyene, 2011-06-09 The issue of biofuels has already been much debated but the focus to date has largely been on Latin America and deforestation this highly original work breaks fresh ground in looking at the African perspective Most African governments see biofuels as having the potential to increase agricultural productivity and export incomes and thus strengthen their national economies improving energy balances and rural employment At the same time climate change may be addressed through reduction of green house gas emissions There are however a number of uncertainties mounting that challenge this scenario Using cutting edge empirical case studies this knowledge gap is addressed in a variety of chapters examining the effects of large scale biofuel production on African agriculture In particular land grabbing and food security issues are scrutinised both of which have become vital topics in regard to the environmental and developmental governance of African countries A revealing book for anyone wishing to understand the startling impact of biofuels and land grabbing on Africa Land and Sustainable Development in Africa Kojo Sebastian Amanor, Sam Moyo, 2013-07-18 This book links contemporary debates on land reform with wider discourses on sustainable development within Africa Featuring chapters and in depth case studies on South Africa and Zimbabwe Malawi Kenya Botswana and West Africa it traces the development of ideas about sustainable development and addresses a new agenda based on social justice The authors critically examine contemporary neoliberal market led reforms and the legacy of colonialism on the land question They argue that debates on sustainable development should be placed in the context of structural interests access and equity rather than technical management of land and resources Additionally they show that these structural factors cannot be transformed by institutional reform based on notions of elective democracy community participation and market reform but require a far more radical programme to redress the injustices of the colonial system that continue today The book advocates a commitment to building sustainable livelihoods for farmers calling for a redistribution of land and natural resources to challenge existing economic relations and frameworks for development

Land Tenure Challenges in Africa Horman Chitonge, Ross Harvey, 2022-01-01 This book provides a significant contribution to the literature on land reform in various African contexts While the economic evidence is clear that secure property rights are a necessary condition for catalysing broad based economic development the governance process by which those rights are secured is less clear This book details the historical complexity of land rights and the importance of understanding this history in the process of trying to improve tenure security Through a combination of single country case studies comparative case studies and regional comparisons the book is unequivocal that good governance is paramount for improving the performance of land reform programmes All attempts at moving towards more formal secure tenure require congruence with informal norms beliefs and values and a set of clear systems and processes to avoid corruption and unintended negative consequences Community Rights, Conservation and Contested Land Fred Nelson, 2010 First Published in 2012 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Reclaiming the Land Sam Moyo, Paris

Yeros, 2013-07-04 Rural movements have recently emerged to become some of the most important social forces in opposition to neoliberalism. From Brazil and Mexico to Zimbabwe and the Philippines, rural movements of diverse political character but all sharing the same social basis of dispossessed peasants and unemployed workers have used land occupations and other tactics to confront the neoliberal state. This volume brings together for the first time across three continents—Africa, Latin America, and Asia—an intellectually consistent set of original investigations into this new generation of rural social movements. These country studies seek to identify their social composition, strategies, tactics, and ideologies to assess their relations with other social actors, including political parties, urban social movements, and international aid agencies and other institutions, and to examine their most common tactic, the land occupation, its origins, pace, and patterns, as well as the responses of governments and landowners. At a more fundamental level, this volume explores the ways in which two decades of neoliberal policy, including new land tenure arrangements intended to hasten the commodification of land and new land uses linked to global markets, have undermined the social reproduction of the rural labour force and created the conditions for popular resistance. The volume demonstrates the longer-term potential impact of these movements. In economic terms, they raise the possibility of tackling immiseration by means of the redistribution of land and the reorganisation of production on a more efficient and socially responsible basis. And in political terms, breaking the power of landowners and transnational capital with interests in land could ultimately open the way to an alternative pattern of capital accumulation and development.

The Great African Land Grab? Lorenzo Cotula, 2013-07-11 Over the past few years, large-scale land acquisitions in Africa have stoked controversy, making headlines in media reports across the world. Land that only a short time ago seemed of little outside interest is now being sought by international investors to the tune of hundreds of thousands of hectares. Private sector expectations of higher world food and commodity prices and government concerns about longer-term national food and energy security have both made land a more attractive asset. Dubbed land grabs in the media, large-scale land acquisitions have become one of the most talked-about and contentious topics amongst those studying, working in, or writing about Africa. Some commentators have welcomed this trend as a bearer of new livelihood opportunities. Others have countered by pointing to negative social impacts, including loss of local land rights, threats to local food security, and the risk that large-scale investments may marginalize family farming. Lorenzo Cotula, a leading expert in the field, casts a critical eye over the most reliable evidence on this hotly contested topic, examining the implications of land deals in Africa both for its people and for world agriculture and food security.

African Families in a Global Context Göran Therborn, 2004 The family is one of the most important institutions of African societies. Where is it going today? How is it affected by global processes, cultural and political as well as economic? How does it compare with family developments in other parts of the world? These are questions which this book addresses. The contributors deal with the African family in a comparative global context, focusing on patriarchy, sexuality, and marriage, and fertility, biological and social reproduction in Ghana, under conditions of globalization and structural adjustment Nigerian marriage relations under the impact of current conditions and family changes in the North Britain from a family perspective of the South South Africa Property and Political Order in Africa Catherine Boone,2014-02-10 In sub Saharan Africa property relationships around land and access to natural resources vary across localities districts and farming regions These differences produce patterned variations in relationships between individuals communities and the state This book captures these patterns in an analysis of structure and variation in rural land tenure regimes In most farming areas state authority is deeply embedded in land regimes drawing farmers ethnic insiders and outsiders lineages villages and communities into direct and indirect relationships with political authorities at different levels of the state apparatus The analysis shows how property institutions institutions that define political authority and hierarchy around land shape dynamics of great interest to scholars of politics including the dynamics of land related competition and conflict territorial conflict patron client relations electoral cleavage and mobilization ethnic politics rural rebellion and the localization and nationalization of political competition Restructuring Or De-industrializing? L. M. Sachikonye,1999 Based on interviews with 240 workers from 12 firms in the textile and metalworking industries conducted between November 1995 and March 1996 group interview discussions with representatives of workers committees and management discusses the effect of structural adjustment on two sub sectors of manufacturing on labour relations and on coping strategies of workers Trans-Atlantic Migration Toyin Falola,Niyi Afolabi,2007-11-21 This book argues that a new cadre of African immigrants are finding themselves in the New World mostly well educated high income earning professionals and belonging to the category termed African brain drain they constitute the antinomy of those Africans who were forcibly removed from Africa during slavery Along with this sense of freedom and voluntary migration comes a paradox that of living in two worlds and negotiating the pleasures and agonies that come with living in exile For the new African immigrant the primary factor motivating migration is the desire for a better life whether fleeing political persecution economic crisis refugee crisis or a combination thereof The overall consequences include displacement alienation and the not so enchanting reality of exile In its encompassing structure and multivalent perspectives Trans Atlantic Migration sets in motion the shifting theoretical and pragmatic verity that the new African diaspora and transatlantic migrations are paths laden with paradoxes that only time negotiations compromises and sense of identities can ultimately resolve West African Worlds Reginald Cline-Cole,Elsbeth Robson,2016-02-17 West African Worlds provides a critical assessment of social economic and political change in Africa s most populous and arguably most externally focused region With an emphasis on globalisation and modernisation case studies and commentary are integrated throughout to highlight the concerns and issues of the region Enriched by an impressive mix of West African voices this text combines theory and application with policy and practice to address socio economic change the pursuit of livelihoods and development within West Africa Land Reform Under Structural Adjustment in Zimbabwe Sam Moyo,2000 This study represents a first systematic effort to document

Zimbabwe's new land uses during the years of economic crisis the role of the state in promoting them the differentiation associated with them not only between black and white farmers but also among them and the implications of all these for the political economy of the Zimbabwean land question The fact that some of the new land uses avoid redistribution of clearly under utilised large scale commercial farms suggests that the Zimbabwean land question will remain a live political issue for a long time

Trajectory of Land Reform in Post-Colonial African States Adeoye O. Akinola, Henry Wissink, 2018-06-13 This book is an examination of post colonial land reforms across various African states One of the decisive contradictions of colonialism in Africa was the distortion of use access to and ownership of land Land related issues and the need for land reform have consistently occupied a unique position in public discourse in Africa The post colonial African states have had to embark on concerted efforts at redressing historical grounded land policies and addressing the growing needs of land by the poor However agitations for land continue while evidence of policy gaps abound In many cases policy change in terms of land use distribution and ownership has reinforced inequalities and affected power and social relations in respective post colonial African countries Land has assumed major causes of structural violence and impediments to human and rural development in Africa hence the need for holistic assessment of land reforms in post colonial African states The central objective of the text is to identify post independence and current trends in land reform and to address the grievances in relation to land use ownership and distribution The book suggests practicable policy options towards addressing the land hunger and conflict which could derail the moderate socio economic achievements and political stability recorded by post colonial African nation states The book draws its strength and uniqueness from its adoption of country specific case studies which places the book in context and utilizes field studies methodology which generate new knowledge on the continental land question Taking a holistic approach to understanding Africa's land question this book will be attractive to academicians and students interested in policy and development African politics post colonial development and policy and conflict studies as well as policy makers working in relevant areas

Becoming Landowners Victoria C. Stead, 2016-10-31 Across Melanesia the ways in which people connect to land are being transformed by processes of modernization globalization the building of states and nations practices and imaginaries of development the legacies of colonialism and the complexities of postcolonial encounters Melanesian peoples are becoming landowners Stead argues both in the sense that these processes of change compel forms of property relations and in the sense that landowner and custom landowner become identities to be wielded against the encroachment of both state and capital In places where customary forms of land tenure have long been dominant deeply intertwined with senses of self and relationships with others land now becomes a crucible upon which social relations power and culture are reconfigured and reimagined Employing a multi sited ethnographic approach Becoming Landowners explores these transformations to land and life as they unfold across two Melanesian countries The chapters move between coasts and inland mountain ranges between urban centers and rural villages telling the stories of people and places who are always situated and particular but who also share powerful commonalities of experience These include a subsistence based community shaped by the legacies of colonialism and occupation in remote Timor Leste villagers in Papua New Guinea resisting a mining operation and the government agents supporting it an urban East Timorese settlement resisting eviction by the nation state its residents hoped would represent them in the post independence era and people and groups in both countries who are struggling for with and sometimes against the formal codification of their claims to land and place In each of these instances customary and modern forms of connection to land are propelled into complex and dynamic configurations theorized here in an innovative way as entanglements of custom and modernity Moving between multiple sites scales and forms of collectivity Becoming Landowners reveals entanglements as spaces of deep ambivalence Here structures of power are destabilized in ways that can lend themselves to the diminishing of local autonomy in the face of the state and capital At the same time the destabilization of power also creates new possibilities for the reassertion of that autonomy and of the customary forms of connection to land in which it is grounded

Tales of the Nation Lene Bull-Christiansen, 2004 In light of the uses and misuses of history in Zimbabwean politics in recent years this research report focuses on how versions of the country's liberation war history have become a site of struggle over the definition of Zimbabwean national identity As identity politics often do Zimbabwean nationalism draws on a wide field of cultural symbols of identity and political discourses of inclusion and exclusion Therefore the report takes a cross disciplinary approach to the issue of national identity by mapping out the imaginary field of Zimbabwean nationalism This approach opens up the possibility of cross reading the political discourses of the President and the ruling party ZANU PF with opposing voices such as those in the works of the author Yvonne Vera This cross reading shows how Vera's novels and the political discourses participate in the struggle over Zimbabwean national identity by offering different versions of the nation's history in the form of patriotic history feminist nationalism or narratives of difference In this way the research report adds to our understanding of power and resistance in Zimbabwean politics of national identity

The Social Lives of Forests Susanna B. Hecht, Kathleen D. Morrison, Christine Padoch, 2014-03-04 Forests are in decline and the threats these outposts of nature face including deforestation degradation and fragmentation are the result of human culture Or are they This volume calls these assumptions into question revealing forests past present and future conditions to be the joint products of a host of natural and cultural forces Moreover in many cases the coalescence of these forces from local ecologies to competing knowledge systems has masked a significant contemporary trend of woodland resurgence even in the forests of the tropics Focusing on the history and current use of woodlands from India to the Amazon The Social Lives of Forests attempts to build a coherent view of forests sited at the nexus of nature culture and development With chapters covering the effects of human activities on succession patterns in now protected Costa Rican forests the intersection of gender and knowledge in African shea nut tree markets and even the unexpectedly rich urban woodlands of Chicago this book explores forests as places of significant human action with complex institutions ecologies and economies that have transformed these landscapes in the past and continue to shape them today From rain forests to timber farms the face of forests how we define understand and maintain them is changing Agronomy for Development James Sumberg, 2017-07-06 Over the last decade there has been renewed interest in food security and the state of the global food system Population growth climate change and food price spikes have combined to focus new attention on the technologies and institutions that underpin the production and consumption of food that is varied nutritious and safe Knowledge politics within development oriented agronomy set the stage for some models of agricultural development to be favoured over others with very real implications for the food security and wellbeing of many millions of people Agronomy for Development demonstrates how the analysis of knowledge politics can shed valuable new light on current debates about agricultural development and food security Using bio physical and social sciences perspectives to address the political economy of the production and use of knowledge in development this edited collection reflects on the changing politics of knowledge within the field of agronomy and the ways in which these politics feed and reflect the interests of a broad set of actors This book is aimed at professionals working in agricultural research as well as students and practitioners of agricultural rural and international development
