Modernity Gert Spaargaren, Arthur P J Mol, Frederick H Buttel, 2000-06-02 This accomplished book argues that we can only make sense of environmental issues if we consider them as part of a more encompassing process of social transformation It asks whether there is an emerging consensus between social scientists on the central issues in the debate on environmental change and if concerns about the environment constitute a major prop to the process of globalization The book provides a thorough discussion of the central themes in environmental sociology identifying two traditions ecological modernization theory and risk society theory Routledge International Handbook of Social and Environmental Change Stewart

Zimmerer,2006-09-15 Examining the geographical dimensions of environmental management and conservation activities implemented on landscapes worldwide Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation creates a new framework and collects original case studies to explore recent developments in the interaction of humans and their environment Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation makes four important arguments about the recent coupling of conservation and globalization that is reshaping the place of nature in human environmental change First it has led to an unprecedented number of spatial arrangements whose environmental management goals and prescribed activities vary along a spectrum from strict biodiversity protection to sustainable utilization involving agriculture food production and extractive activities Conservation and globalization are also leading by necessity to new scales of management in these activities that rely on environmental science thus shifting the spatial patterning of humans and the environment This interaction results as well in the unprecedented importance of boundaries and borders transnational border issues pose both opportunities and threats to global conservation proposed by organizations and institutions that are themselves international Lastly Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation argues that the local level has been integral to globalization while the regional level is often eclipsed at the peril of the successful implementation of conservation and management programs Bridging the gap between geography and life science Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation will appeal to a broad range of students of the environment conservation planning biodiversity management and development and globalization studies Navigating Global Environmental Sustainability Bret L. Billet,2023-08-22 The Great Recession provided an opportunity to reconsider how to simultaneously enhance the well being of individuals corporations countries and the global environment A half century of vital environmental data demands examining several questions pertaining to the impact of a recession on sustainable environmental consumption Does a recession provide an occasion for productive dialogue that might reconcile the ostensible incompatibility of economic and ecological rationales Does it constitute an artificial turning point whereby appropriate incentives may induce productive change Are post recession environmental consumption patterns indicative of government encouragement and corporate willingness to pursue transformative environmental technologies Alternatively are the patterns illustrative of countries transferring their environmental consumption to other countries via international trade Bret L Billet argues that the simultaneous investigation of both the Ecological Modernization theory and the Ecological Unequal Exchange theory strengthens the present quantitative analysis enhancing understanding of the recession well being sustainable environment nexus Each ecological theory is rooted in the politicized evolution of traditional theories of economic development The introduction of an Aristotelean conception of development as well being an exceptionally large number of cases and the analysis of multiple country subsets results in a more robust inquiry as to the impact of the Great Recession on the global sustainable environment Environment, Modernization and Development in East Asia Ts'ui-jung Liu, James Beattie, 2016-04-08 Environment Modernization and Development in East Asia critically examines modernization's long term environmental history It suggests new frameworks for understanding as inter related processes environmental social and economic change across China and Japan Handbook on the Geographies of Globalization Robert C.
