McGrew, Paul Lewis, 2013-05-02 This innovative new text is derived from a highly successful Open University course of the same title It takes as a dominant theme the contested issue of globalization the apparent intensification of global patterns of inter dependence and its implications for the autonomy of the modern nation state Following a conceptual introduction which critically examines the theoretical debates framing the study of world politics the work is structured around four key processes of globalization which the authors identify as being the central determinants of contemporary global politics These key processes are the global impact of great power relations the globalizing tendencies of technological innovation the existence of a global economy and the globalizing force of modernity Reflecting this structure the text is organized into four discrete sections Each section explores both theoretically and empirically one of the four processes of globalization Throughout particular attention is paid both to a critical evaluation of these globalizing processes as well as to their consequences for the sovereignty and autonomy of the modern nation state Moreover the authors combine a lucid treatment of theoretical debates with topical case study material to produce a text which is extremely accessible to undergraduate students studying international relations and politics and to those readers with little prior knowledge of world affairs The Globalization of World Politics John Baylis, Steve Smith, Patricia Owens, 2017 This title provides an introduction to international relations IR supporting over 300 000 students taking their first steps in IR and beyond The New Agenda for International Relations Stephanie Lawson, 2013-07-08 There have been significant political eras which have shaped not only the structure of world politics but the way in which it has been studied The geopolitical and ideological contours of the Cold War period for example had an impact on almost every aspect of world politics and the study of international relations for around 45 years This book argues that just as the collapse of the Soviet Union in the period following the fall of the Berlin Wall signalled the end of strategic polarization it also marked the apparent end of a particular form of polarized debate around political social and economic ideas The various new directions taken by scholars of international relations in the post Cold War era constitute a large part of a new agenda for the discipline This collection reflects the variety of issues and approaches that have become part and parcel of this agenda over the past ten years Issues tackled in this volume include the power of culture and ideology the concept of globalisation inequality human rights and security as well as reflections on new forms of polarization in the post Cold War world Each contributor addresses the nature of changes and continuities in world politics considers how the discipline of international relations itself has changed and reflects on possible directions for the twenty first Century This book will be of great interest to scholars of international relations global politics economics and related disciplines
