Singing Whales and Flying Squid Richard Ellis, 2006-01-01

Two thirds of this planet is covered by water inhabited by an incredible variety of living organisms ranging in size from microbe to whale and in abundance from scarce to uncountable Whales and dolphins must surface to breathe and some fishes occupy surface waters and can easily be seen from boats or shore but most of the marine bio profusion is hidden from human eyes often under thousands of feet and millions of tons of water which is usually cold dark and utterly inhospitable to humans By definition the study of marine life has been quantitatively and qualitatively different from the study of terrestrial life it is if you will a different kettle of fish What do we know today how have we learned it and what remains unknown and unknowable about inner space Because there have been so few human visitors to the uninviting world of the deep sea scientists have had to rely on trawled specimens photographs taken by robotic cameras or occasionally observations from deep diving submersibles to get even the vaguest idea of the nature of life in the abyss So far even our most elaborate efforts to penetrate the blackness have produced only minimal results It is as if someone lowered a collecting basket from a balloon high above the tropical rain forest floor and tried to analyze the nature of life in the jungle from a couple of random hauls The inner space of the deep offers the last frontier on the planet Even now we know more about the back side of the moon than we do about the bottom of the ocean but then the surface of the moon is not hidden under miles of impenetrable water But we do know that living in this inaccessible medium are some of the most fascinating creatures on Earth An understanding of the interrelationships between various creatures including the one predator that has the power to distort damage or even eliminate populations of marine animals is necessary if we are to survive in harmony with these populations Although new technologies have given us tools to better census the whales dolphins and fishes and to see heretofore unexpected life and geological forms deep under the sea we are a long way from comprehending the nature and importance of marine biodiversity Singing Whales Flying Squid and Swimming Cucumbers is an attempt to put the search for knowledge into perspective to try to find out how we got here and where with the help of curiosity science and technology we might be headed With this as our Baedeker we will voyage through time and space tracing the history of the discovery of marine biology from the moment that the first scientists although for the most part science had barely been invented tried to figure out what sorts of creatures lived in the Mediterranean the sea right off their shores So join Richard Ellis on an underwater adventure like no other you ve ever taken or heard of a voyage to discover the mysteries and reveal the wonders of marine life more unusual and more astonishing than you or anyone else ever imagined     The Saturday Evening Post ,1928
