Effective Listening Sorin Dumitrascu, 2017-02-10

Do you have problems truly listening? Do you find your mind wandering in the middle of conversations? Then this series in Effective Listening is for you. This course, Listening Basics, is the first in a series of courses to help you understand how you listen and how you can improve your listening skills. This course covers the three essential aspects for understanding how you listen. The three lessons in this course are: The Communication Process, The Listening Process, and Listening as a Function of Communication. According to a U.S. Department of Labor study, Skills and the New Economy, the average worker spends 55 percent of the day listening. Listening activities include using the telephone, engaging in conversation, and listening while in meetings and presentations. Unfortunately, most people fail to listen effectively and only remember 25 percent of what they hear. Could you listen more effectively at work? In dollar terms, it is extremely important for companies and employees to take listening seriously. One communications analyst has estimated that business personnel receive 63 percent of their salary for listening. Once you understand the listening process, you can learn and then practice listening skills. Training and practice can enhance your present listening skills. Otherwise, listening mistakes can cost your company clients and profits and can decrease production. Imagine a trucking company dispatcher misunderstanding Albany, New York, for Albany, Georgia. Such a simple listening error could cost a company thousands of dollars to redirect a truck and its goods. Better listening skills will prevent you from making expensive or embarrassing mistakes. This course will enable you to begin improving your listening ability. We need a definite purpose, a specific reason for listening; otherwise, we don't pay attention and don't really hear or understand. Robert Montgomery: One of the key elements of communication is listening. If you have developed good listening skills, it will be easier for you to pay attention, hear, and understand messages. You can learn to be a more effective listener by learning specific listening skills. These skills can reinforce, improve, or change your present listening behavior in a variety of situations. This course, the second in the Effective Listening path, focuses on getting the most information possible out of a message. So how do you listen for comprehension? First, you should be able to identify and interpret verbal and nonverbal cues that add context to a verbal message. Second, you should also be able to comprehend the meaning of the speaker's verbal message. Your comprehension is based on understanding what you hear and what you need to ask questions about. This course covers the following lessons that will help you develop better listening skills: Identifying Verbal and Nonverbal Cues, Interpreting Cues

Understanding What You Hear Checking Your Understanding Understanding in Special Listening Situations Because this course teaches listening skills it is important to have your audio turned on for certain sections In some instances the text that is spoken will display in the caption text box In these cases the important feature is not what is said but how it is said In these sections it would be most effective for you to turn off the captions to get the full effect of the audio In other instances audio is presented without accompanying text To complete these sections you must have your audio turned on Listening to identify and comprehend messages helps you become a more effective communicator When you can better understand what is said to you you can become a more flexible listener

Effective Listening Skills for Workplace Excellence Iloki Siziba,2020-10-16 You do not listen retorts a supervisor to a subordinate after the latter omitted one of the instructions given to them resulting in substandard product The omission of that one instruction may not have been a direct result of failure to listen There could have been other causes but failure to listen effectively has higher chances of causing the omission than any other possible cause That is why the supervisor is concluding that the subordinate is a bad listener You cannot succeed in the workplace if you cannot listen effectively You do not work in isolation but with other people So one way or the other you have to listen to them in as much as they listen to you and effective listening skills become handy If you do not listen to others well they may also not listen to you and the team is fragmented You do not listen shouts a teacher to a student after the student failed the test The ability to pass the test depends on a number of factors but listening plays a very important role in determining whether a learner passes or fails We learn through various ways but most learning is through listening and listening effectively You cannot succeed in school if you are a bad listener You do not listen cries an angry wife when the husband asks a question that had been answered an hour earlier in the conversation We are called upon to give each other an ear every time for relationships to thrive You cannot succeed in marriage with poor listening skills You do not listen is an outcry almost everywhere in business in colleges in homes etc yet everyone regards themselves a good listener You may also think you are a good listener so did I until I gathered the humility and courage to find out and this changed my life You too can learn this important skill No one is born a good listener You have to make a deliberate effort to learn this important skill It improves the quality of your relationships
