Acidification Research: Evaluation and Policy

Applications T. Schneider,1992-04-24 A large number of nationwide research programmes in the field of acidification have been carried out in the last decade Especially in Western Europe extensive programmes have resulted in a good overview of all the effects mostly negative caused by acidifying substances There is now consensus that types of acidification damage relate to the unique geography of an area air pollution affects vegetation acid aerosol the ozone layer New in this volume is the relation between scientific results of integrated research programmes and policy actions to prevent reduce and limit the widespread damage caused by acidification The results of many different national research programmes are evaluated and compared to present a unique compilation for the research scientist and policy maker In this volume thematic reviews on specific topics of acidification research are presented followed by overviews of acidification policy plans and actual abatement plans The result is the best review of acidification research carried out worldwide during the last decade and presentation of the critical relation between research results and policy actions Forest Decline and Atmospheric Deposition Effects in the French Mountains M. Kaennel,Guy Landmann,Maurice Bonneau,2012-12-06 Forest decline became a matter of public and scientific concern in France in 1983 when conifers in the Vosges mountains were found to exhibit unusual crown deterioration An impassioned controversy on a supposedly large scale forest health problem was then in full swing in Central Europe A co ordinated research programme entitled DEFORPA Deperissement des For ts et Pollution Atmosphérique was launched in 1984 This programme ran from 1984 to 1991 and a number of projects are still in progress The Programme was sponsored by three French ministries Environnement Agriculture and Forestry Research and Technology several state agencies various regional authorities and the Commission of the European Communities DO xn and DG VI Initially emphasis was solely laid on the understanding of forest decline in the mountainous areas because damage was most obvious there in relation to natural and man made factors Air pollution was given high but not overwhelming priority Thus the DEFORPA Programme was not in its essence a nation wide assessment of air pollution effects unlike a number of national acidification research programmes in Europe and North America During the programme however the areas of concern expanded In particular research into water acidification in the Vosges mountains was developed in parallel with the DEFORPA Programme and possible eutrophication of the ground flora in northeastern France became the subject of new research Research Handbook on International Environmental Law Fitzmaurice, Malgosia,Brus, Marcel,Merkouris, Karnosky, Kevin E Percy, A.H. Chappelka, C. Simpson, J. Pikkarainen, 2003-12-18 The chapters in this book present a snapshot of the state of knowledge of air pollution effects at the beginning of the 21st century From their different disciplines a distinguished collection of authors document their understanding of how leaves trees and forests respond to air pollutants and climate change Scenarios of global change and air pollution are described The authors describe responses of forests to climate variability tropospheric ozone rising atmospheric CO₂ the combination of CO₂ and ozone and deposition of acidic compounds and heavy metals The responses to ozone receive particular attention because of increasing concern about its damaging effects and increasing concentrations in rural areas Scaling issues are addressed from leaves to trees from juvenile trees to mature trees from short term responses to long term responses and from small scale experiments and observations to large scale forest ecosystems This book is one major product of a conference sponsored by the International Union of Forestry Research Organizations the USDA Forest Service Global Change Northern Stations Program the Arthur Ross Foundation NCASI the Canadian Forest Service and Michigan Technological University The conference held in May 2000 in Houghton Michigan USA was appropriately titled Air Pollution Global Change and Forests in the New Millennium The Editors David Karnosky Kevin Percy Art Chappelka Caroline Simpson and Janet Pikkarainen organized the conference and edited this book

Tropospheric Ozone and its Impacts on Crop Plants Supriya Tiwari, Madhoolika Agrawal, 2018-03-07 The research and its outcomes presented here focuses on tropospheric or ground level ozone in particular due to its surfacing as a major threat to crop productivity around the world This book presents the ozone concentration data for a variety of geographical regions examines the factors responsible for its increasing concentrations and its potential effects on physiological and biochemical responses culminating in crop productivity losses which in turn may pose a serious threat to global food security Beside this certain ameliorative measures that could be adopted to assess ozone injury in plants are also discussed Global climate change scenarios predict a significant increase in future tropospheric ozone concentration Particular attention is therefore given to evaluate the effect of global climate change on ozone concentrations Readers will also discover how yield losses due to ozone are related to changes in the socio economic conditions of the society especially in South Asian regions Students and researchers studying crop and soil science environmental scientists risk assessment professionals and policy makers will find this book of interest

Environmental Chemistry: Asian Lessons V.N. Bashkin, 2007-05-08 At present environmental chemistry is becoming an increasingly popular subject in both under graduate and graduated education in the whole World and especially in all Asian countries Different courses in ecology chemistry environmental science public health geography biology and environmental engineering all include this subject in their curriculum Many textbooks have appeared in recent years aiming to fulfill these requirements however most of these books operate mainly with examples from developed countries of Europe USA and Canada Taking into account the geographic boundaries of environmental pollution that is especially pronounced in Asia and the specific peculiarities of pollution in developing countries this textbook is supposed to close the gap by providing regionally oriented knowledge in basic and applied environmental chemistry

Heavy Metal Toxicity: Environmental Concerns, Remediation and Opportunities Rajeev Pratap Singh, Pooja Singh, Amrita Srivastava, 2023-09-22 This contributed volume covers a comprehensive account of the sources toxic biological as well as environmental impacts and possible remediation strategies for contamination by heavy metals In biological systems toxic metals affect the integrity of cellular organelles and act as carcinogens causing chromosomal aberrations or as systemic toxicants leading to cardiovascular neurobehavioral and immunological disorders In plants they interfere with photosynthesis fertility metabolite and chlorophyll synthesis Toxicity induced by heavy metals involves mechanistic approaches that need to be understood properly They cannot be degraded by biological or chemical means and thus can only be converted to less harmful forms The conventional detection methods include biosensors voltammetry atomic absorption spectrometry and inductively coupled plasma with atomic emission spectrometry All such strategies for metal detection and mitigation strategies are covered in this title under one section This book incorporates classical views along with modern scientific approaches to develop an understanding of the subject matter suitable for academicians researchers planners policymakers NGOs and environmental consultancies and raise awareness on this concern Topics representing diverse sections namely environmental impacts biological effects and methods used for detection and remediation have been included to address all possible contemporary issues on the topic in one concise volume
