Organization and Its Political Economic and Social Manifestations 1870-1880 Social unrest has been one of the most marked characteristics of the last half century in the United States During this period the country and especially the western part of it has been transformed from a comparatively simple agricultural community into a complex modern industrial state and in the process of adjustment the agricultural class of the population among others has been inclined to feel aggrieved The result has been a series of radical agitations on the part of the farmers for the improvement by organized effort of their relative condition Of this general farmers movement the first wave which is the subject of this study began with the establishment of the order of Patrons of Husbandry in 1867 slowly gathered headway for a few years and then suddenly culminated in a series of startling manifestations political and economic during the years from 1873 to 1875 From then on to the end of the decade this Granger movement gradually subsided although many of its features were embodied in the programs of the more radical agricultural movements which took their rise in the early eighties About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works *The Granger Movement.
