Empire City David M. Scobey, 2002 For generations New Yorkers have joked about The City s interminable tearing down and building up The city that the whole world watches seems to be endlessly remaking itself

When the locals and the rest of the world say New York they mean Manhattan a crowded island of commercial districts and residential neighborhoods skyscrapers and tenements fabulously rich and abjectly poor cheek by jowl Of course it was not always so New York's metamorphosis from compact port to modern metropolis occurred during the mid nineteenth century Empire City tells the story of the dreams that inspired the changes in the landscape and the problems that eluded solution Author David Scobey paints a remarkable panorama of New York's uneven development a city building process careening between obsessive calculation and speculative excess Envisioning a new kind of national civilization bourgeois urbanists attempted to make New York the nation's pre eminent city Ultimately they created a mosaic of grand improvements dynamic change and environmental disorder Empire City sets the stories of the city's most celebrated landmarks Central Park the Brooklyn Bridge the downtown commercial center within the context of this new ideal of landscape design and a politics of planned city building Perhaps such an ambitious project for guiding growth overcoming spatial problems and uplifting the public was bound to fail still it grips the imagination of concerted investigation and yet which can be described as an intrinsic aspect of all human knowing and part of all processes by which human beings process information about themselves their identities their environments and their relations the imagination How do anthropologists use imagination in coming to know their research subjects How might they and how should they use their imagination And how do research subjects themselves understand describe justify and limit their use of the imagination Presenting a range of case studies from a variety of locations including the UK US Africa East Asia and South America this collection offers a comparative exploration of how imagination has been conceptualized and understood in a range of analytical traditions with regard to issues of both methodology and ethnomethodology With emphasis not on abstraction but on imagination as activity technique and subject situated in the middle of lives Reflections on Imagination sheds new light on imagination as a universal capacity and practice something to which human beings attend whenever they make sense of their environments and situate their life projects in these environments the means by which worlds come to be
