Gender Health And Longevity Multidisciplinary Perspectives:

1987 Census of Manufactures, 1990 Sex and Longevity: Sexuality, Gender, Reproduction, Parenthood J.-M.

Robine, T.B.L. Kirkwood, M. Allard, 2012-12-06 A central concept in the evolutionary theory of senescence is the idea that ageing results from life history trade offs. In particular, the disposable soma theory suggests that longevity is determined through the setting of longevity assurance mechanisms so as to provide an optimal compromise between investments in somatic maintenance including stress resistance and in reproduction. Comparative studies among mammalian species confirm that cells from long lived species appear to have a greater intrinsic capacity to withstand stresses than cells from short lived species. Childbearing at older ages has become increasingly common in modern societies because of demographic changes, medical progress and personal choice. While the detrimental effects of late reproduction on infant mortality and genetic diseases have been well documented, little is known about the possible postponed detrimental effects of late parenting.

The Berlin Aging Study Paul B. Baltes, Karl Ulrich Mayer, 2001-03-19 The present and future of our society are shaped by an ever increasing proportion of old and very old people. The Berlin Aging Study is one of the largest interdisciplinary efforts to explore old age and aging. Unique aspects of the Berlin Aging Study are the spectrum of scientific disciplines involved, the range of discipline specific and interdisciplinary research topics, the focus on very old age (70 to over 100 years) and the empirical reference to a representative heterogeneous urban population. The study's first cross sectional findings on intellectual abilities, self and personality, social relationships, physical health, functional capacity, medical treatment, mental disorders such as depression and dementia, socioeconomic conditions, activities, everyday competence, subjective well being and gender differences are reported in depth in this book. The study was carried out in the context of the Berlin Brandenburg Academy of Sciences study group on Aging and Social Development. The authors primarily conduct their research at the Berlin Max Planck Institute for Human Development, the Free University of Berlin and the Humboldt University Berlin.

Published Scientific Papers of the National Institutes of Health National Institutes of Health (U.S.), 1990 Presents the broad outline of NIH organizational structure, the professional staff and their scientific and technical publications covering work done at NIH. Beyond Gender Differences Laurie Russell Hatch, 2018-12-20 The central aim of this book is to challenge to questions like: Which gender copes better when a spouse dies and Are women or men more independent on others as they grow older? Putting gender in a lifespan context. Hatch, Sociology, U of Kentucky atypically accents the gains as well as losses of aging and sex differences in adaptation overall to the death of a spouse and to retirement. A number of controversies surrounding gender and aging are addressed. The Demography and Epidemiology of Human Health and Aging Jacob S. Siegel, 2011-09-30 With this book Siegel, an internationally known demographer and gerontologist, has made a unique contribution to the fledgling fields of health demography and the demography and epidemiology of aging. The book represents a felicitous union of epidemiology, gerontology and demography and appears to be the first and only comprehensive text on this subject now available Drawing on a wide range of sciences in addition to demography gerontology and epidemiology including medical sociology biostatistics public policy bioethics and molecular biology the author treats theoretical and applied issues links methods and findings covers the material internationally nationally and locally and while focusing on the elderly treats the entire life course The methods materials and perspectives of demography and epidemiology are brought to bear on such topics as the prospects for future increases in human longevity the relative contribution of life style environment genetics and chance in human longevity the measurement of the share of healthy years in total life expectancy the role of population growth in the rising costs of health care and the applications of health demography in serving the health needs of local communities The separate chapters systematically develop the topics of the sources and quality of health data mortality life tables and the measurement of health status the interrelationships of health on the one hand and mortality fertility migration and age structure on the other health conditions in the less developed countries the concepts and theories of aging and projections of the aged population and local health applications public health policy and bioethical issues in health demography Given its comprehensiveness clarity interdisciplinary scope and authenticity this book appeals to a wide range of users from students and teachers of medical sociology the demography of aging and public health studies to practitioners in these areas both as a text in health demography and the demography epidemiology of aging and as a reference work in these fields

Hormones in Lipoprotein Metabolism Armin Steinmetz, Jürgen Schneider, Hans Kaffarnik, 2012-12-06 An intimate relation between hormones and lipoprotein metabolism has been known for a long time especially from hormone deficiency or overproduction syndromes The mechanisms through which hormones influence lipid metabolism have become a field of major interest in science The more we learn about cellular hormonal actions the better we understand regulatory processes and phenomena occurring in patients The present book summarizes data discussed at an International Meeting at Marburg Germany on Hormones in Lipoprotein Metabolism It was an attempt to pull together knowledge in basic science from the mode of action of hormones all the way to clinical appearance of hormonal disorders involving lipoprotein metabolism Thus data on molecular biology on hormonal regulation of apolipoprotein synthesis on lipoprotein receptors and enzyme induction are discussed together with the large field of oral contraceptive use postmenopausal estrogen substitution lipid disorders in diabetes mellitus in thyroid dysfunction in adrenal insufficiency and in glucocorticoid application We are aware of the fact that such an overview cannot be complete but should serve as a collection of data and ideas for those interested in hormonal regulation of lipid metabolism We thank all authors for taking an extra effort in writing up their presentations and thus making this edition possible We also thank Bristol Myers Squibb for generous support of the meeting and of the final publication Marburg Germany ARMIN STEINMETZ JURGEN SCHNEIDER HANS KAFFARNIK Contents Molecular Biology Chairmen D J Rader A National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1991 Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70

Women's Health Judith A. Lewis, Judith Bernstein, 1996 This book provides an integrated multidisciplinary approach to women's health Historical sociocultural psychological and biophysiological aspects of women's development are woven together to provide a complete women centered perspective of health While several excellent books in print provide information on diagnosis and treatment of women and address women's growth and development Lewis and Bernstein strive to fill a void by marrying these perspectives The book also offers a thorough investigation into the life cycle of women And The roles of women as individuals and members of their communities and cultures Behavior, Health, and Aging Stephen B. Manuck, Richard Jennings, Bruce Rabin, Andrew S. Baum, 2014-04-08 A dramatic shift in the average age of the U S population and the increasing number of elderly Americans has introduced new and challenging healthcare dilemmas This book addresses these issues with contributed chapters by the leading authorities in the field of behavioral medicine It deals with health and healthcare needs of the elderly by considering basic changes that result from aging and some of the more specific problems that accompany it Content highlights include a review of the basic tenets of genetics and molecular biology including some of the methods of looking at heritable differences in health and well being Quality of life concerns are addressed including the differences between men and women as well as other gender issues Several chapters deal with the effects of aging on immunity The latter part of the book emphasizes the psychosocial implications of aging on cardiovascular disease Chronic illness among the elderly is also addressed Controversial Issues in Health Care Policy Jennie J. Kronenfeld, 1993 In the last 35 years health care in the US has grown into a multi billion dollar industry Americans view access to health care as important and take pride in their excellent medical care technology However there is growing consensus that the US health care system is in crisis but there is far less agreement on what to do about it This book examines the major controversies confronting American society health care professionals and policy makers access to health care costs and financing health care and the quality of health care Kronenfeld discusses whether the system can solve these problems or whether there is a health care system at all Aging, Society, and the Life Course, Fifth Edition Leslie A.
