Development and Gender Disparity in Haryana: The Nature and Extent Monu Kumar, Lateral Preferences and Human Behavior Clare Porac,Stanley Coren,2012-12-06 Lateral preferences are strange puzzling and on the surface not particularly adaptive aspects of behavior Why one chooses habitually to write or to brush the teeth with the right hand while a friend or family member habitually uses the left hand might be interesting enough to elicit some conversation over dinner or a drink but certainly does not seem to warrant serious scientific study Yet when one looks at human behaviors more carefully one becomes aware that asymmetrical behaviors favoring one side or the other are actually a fairly universal characteristic of human beings In the same way that we are right or left handed we are also right or left footed eyed and eared As a species we are quite lopsided in our behavioral coordinations furthermore the vast majority of us are right sided Considering that we are looking at a sizable number of behaviors and at a set of biases that seem to be systematic and show a predictable skew in the population the problem takes on greater significance The most obvious form of lateral preference is of course handedness When studying behavioral asymmetries this is the issue with which most investigators start Actually we entered this research area through a much different route Around 1971 we became interested in the problem of eye dominance or eye preference This is a behavior where the input to one eye seems to be preferred over that to the other in certain binocular viewing situations INNOVATION AND CHALLENGES IN MATERNAL AND NEWBORN CARE DR.

USHA UKANDE,DR. SUDHARANI B BANAPPAGOUDAR,2024-01-31 Perinatal bereavement care encompasses holistic support and services offered by healthcare professionals addressing physical psychological emotional and spiritual needs of bereaved parents which is ignored most often in clinical settings This hospital based descriptive study aimed to assess knowledge attitudes and factors associated with attitude regarding perinatal bereavement care among nursing personnel in a tertiary care hospital in central India A total of 207 nursing personnel participated in the study selected through non probability convenient sampling Data was collected using a structured questionnaire 5 point Likert scale and dichotomous scale The study revealed that 78.3% of nursing personnel possessed average knowledge while 73.4% exhibited a positive attitude towards perinatal bereavement care Personal perinatal grieving experiences history of other grieving experiences existing hospital policies regular training and Continuing Nursing Education and traditional beliefs and values were identified as highly influencing factors associated with attitude of nursing personnel regarding Perinatal Bereavement Care Furthermore the research highlighted a positive correlation between the knowledge and attitude of nursing personnel regarding perinatal bereavement care Significant associations were observed between knowledge scores attitudes and demographic variables such as age total work experience years of experience in maternity wards personal loss experiences and past experience in handling grieving parents among nursing personnel In conclusion the study underscores the importance of perinatal bereavement care in providing support to grieving parents Family Demography in Asia Stuart Gietel-Basten, John Casterline, Minja Kim Choe, 2018-11-30 The demographic future of Asia is a global issue As the biggest driver of population growth an understanding of patterns and trends in fertility throughout Asia is critical to understand our shared demographic future This is the first book to comprehensively and systematically analyse fertility across the continent through the perspective of individuals themselves rather than as a consequence of top down government policies

Renegotiating Patriarchy Naila Kabeer, 2024-09-26 The idea of the Bangladesh paradox describes the unexpected social progress that Bangladesh has made in recent decades that has been both pro poor and gender equitable This began at a time when the country was characterised by extreme levels of poverty poor quality governance an oppressive patriarchy and rising Islamic orthodoxy This paradox has evoked a great deal of interest within the international development community because Bangladesh had been dubbed an international basket case at the time of its independence in 1971 seemingly trapped in a development impasse Previous attempts to explain this paradox have generally taken a top down approach focusing on the role of leading institutional actors donors government NGOs and the private sector In Renegotiating Patriarchy Gender Agency and the Bangladesh Paradox Naila Kabeer starts with the rationale that policy actions taken at the top are unlikely to materialise into actual changes if they are not acted on by the mass of ordinary women and men But what led these women and men to act And why did they act in ways that modified some of the more oppressive aspects of patriarchy in the country That is what this book sets out to investigate It describes the history of the Bengal delta and the forces that gave rise to the kind of society that Bangladesh was at the time of its independence It considers the policy and politics that characterised post independence Bangladesh and how these contributed to the progress captured in the idea of the Bangladesh paradox But the key argument of the book is that much of this progress reflected the agency exercised by ordinary often very poor women in the course of their everyday lives Their agency helped to translate institutional actions into concrete changes on the ground To explore why and how this happened the book draws on a rich body of ethnographic qualitative and quantitative research on social change in Bangladesh including studies by the author herself The book is therefore about how norms and practices can change in progressive ways despite unpropitious circumstances as a result of the efforts of poor women in Bangladesh to renegotiate what had been described as one of the most non negotiable patriarchies in the world

Journal of Regional History , 2004 Hormones and Economic Behavior Pablo Brañas-Garza, Levent Neyse, Martin Voracek, Ulrich Schmidt, Monica Capra, 2019-01-29 Behavioral correlates of hormones emphasized by psychologists have captured the attention of economists in the past years Behavioral economists in particular have investigated the possible roles of hormones on economic decision making and behavior as well as social preferences and cognitive abilities

Testosterone oxytocin dopamine serotonin and stress hormones are the foremost studied ones in economic contexts Yet the results are mixed and the relationship between hormones and economic behavior is under investigated to this date Hormone levels are measurable and manipulatable e g activate de activate block The fact that the behavioral economics also employs experimental methodology makes it possible to observe both correlational and causal relationships between hormones and economic behavior Since numerous environmental social and biological factors interact with hormone fluctuations capturing the true impacts of hormones on decisions and behavior is challenging Manipulating hormone levels in the body is a method that is used to tackle this issue Such studies compare observed behaviors of hormones or placebo administrated participants to determine causal relationships This Research Topic welcomes the studies on the direct or indirect correlates of hormones on economic behavior and decision making to create new insights on the economic consequences of endocrine activity
