

GENERALISATION IN HISTORIOGRAPHY

❖ Generalisation is the linkage of disparate or unrelated facts, in time and space, with each other.

❖ It is the grouping of facts or classifying them on a rational basis. It is the means through which historians understand their materials and try to provide their understanding of facts to others.

❖ Generalisation is involved as soon as we perform the two most elementary tasks: classify 'facts' or 'data' or 'phenomena' and compare and contrast them, or seek out similarities and dissimilarities among them, and make any inference from them. Thus we make a generalisation when we put our facts into a series one after another.

For instance, when we mention the caste or religion of a leader we are making a generalisation by suggesting that caste plays an important part in shaping their personality and, therefore, their political or literary work.
