

The book cover features a man in a post-apocalyptic setting. He is wearing a green jacket over a red plaid shirt, blue jeans, and a large black backpack. He is walking away from the viewer down a street lined with dilapidated, multi-story brick buildings. In the distance, a bright, hazy orange light, possibly a setting or rising sun, illuminates the scene, creating a strong silhouette effect on the man and the buildings. The overall tone is gritty and atmospheric.

Scorched Earth Lisa von Biela, 2019-09-17 In the year 2032 a record-breaking drought grips the nation. Tinder-dry conditions fuel massive fires. Water reserves plummet to new and dangerous lows. Draconian water laws punish even minimal waste without mercy. And there's no relief in sight. A fast-moving inferno ignites in Western Nebraska, driving Jake and Lexi from their home in the middle of the night with almost no time to pack up their belongings. They flee west on the interstate along with their infant daughter Ava, hoping the fire will soon be contained and they can return home. Instead, the fire races out of control, quickly consuming much of the Nebraska Panhandle, forcing Jake and Lexi to decide on a hasty relocation plan. They hit the road through the Nevada desert, heartbroken over the widespread destruction and their loss, but hoping to find a new and better life out West. But the road takes them places they never could have expected, places they never wanted to go. Jake and Lexi thought they'd already lost everything to the fire. They were wrong. Which road should you take when escape is only an illusion.

Kingdom Come Jim Houghan, 2001 When a surveillance subject is slaughtered, CIA agent Jack Dunphy is ordered to leave London and return to the U.S. where he is dumped into desk duty, seemingly calculated to make him quit. Determined to learn why, Dunphy uses all of his CIA tradecraft and discovers a conspiracy so vast and old that the CIA itself is but a cover for it.

The Fire in Fiction Donald Maass, 2009-05-06 Discover the Difference Between a So-So Manuscript and a Novel Readers Can't Forget. We've all read them: novels by our favorite authors that disappoint. Uninspired and lifeless, we wonder what happened. Was the author in a hurry? Did she have a bad year? Has he lost interest altogether? Something similar is true of a great many unpublished manuscripts. They are okay stories that never take flight. They don't grip the imagination, let alone the heart. They merit only a shrug and a polite dismissal by agents and editors. It doesn't have to be that way. In The Fire in Fiction, successful literary agent and author Donald Maass shows you not only how to infuse your story with deep conviction and fiery passion, but how to do it over and over again. The book features techniques for capturing a special time and place, creating characters whose lives matter, nailing multiple impact plot turns, making the supernatural real, infusing issues into fiction and more Story enriching exercises at the end of every chapter to show you how to apply the practical tools just covered to your own work Rich examples drawn from contemporary novels as diverse as The Lake House Water for Elephants and Jennifer Government to illustrate how various techniques work in actual stories Plus Maass introduces an original technique that any novelist can use any time in any scene in any novel even on the most uninspired day to take the most powerful experiences from your personal life and turn those experiences directly into powerful fiction Tap into The Fire in Fiction and supercharge your story with originality and spark
