Global Food Trade And Consumer Demand For Quality:

Global Food Trade and Consumer Demand for Quality Barry Krissoff, Mary Bohman, Julie A. Caswell, 2002-02-28 The objective of these proceedings is to examine consumer demand for quality attributes including food safety biotechnology free food organic food etc in the context of a global economy and expanding international trade and the role of both private firm strategies and public policy in facilitating consumer choice and free trade Specific questions will be addressed in order to meet this objective They begin with the two way linkage between trade and consumer demand and end with quality and regulation Global Food Trade and Consumer Demand for Quality Barry Krissoff, Mary Bohman, Julie Caswell, 2013-03-14

Consumers have always been concerned about the quality and particularly the safety of the foods they eat In recent years this concern has taken on additional prominence Consumer focus on food safety has been sharpened by reports about new risks such as that posed by mad cow disease and about more familiar sources of risk such as food borne pathogens pesticides and hormones At the same time some consumers are increasingly interested in knowing more about how their food is produced and in selecting products based on production practices Some of the questions consumers are asking include whether food is produced with the use of modern biotechnology whether it is organically produced how animals are treated in meat and egg production systems and whether food is produced using traditional methods Recent trends also show increased consumer demand for a variety of food products that are fresh tasty and available on a year round basis This has fostered increased global trade in food For example consumers in temperate climates such as North America are able to buy raspberries throughout the year and Europeans can enjoy South American coffee Trade in processed food products is actually increasing more rapidly than trade in agricultural commodities further addressing the demand for variety among consumers Public Policy in Food and Agriculture Azzedine Azzam, 2009-12-23

Public Policy in Food and Agriculture is a component of Encyclopedia of Food and Agricultural Sciences Engineering and Technology Resources in the global Encyclopedia of Life Support Systems EOLSS which is an integrated compendium of twenty one Encyclopedias The theme on Public Policy in Food and Agriculture with contributions from distinguished experts in the field discusses food and agricultural policy refers to all means by which a country regulates food and agriculture to achieve objectives subject to political economic social and technological constraints The content of the theme is organized with state of the art presentations covering the following aspects of the subject Public Regulation of Food and Agricultural Markets Inspection Quarantine and Quality Control Land Management and Property Rights Food Security and Government Intervention This volume is aimed at the following five major target audiences University and College students Educators Professional practitioners Research personnel and Policy analysts managers and decision makers and NGOs Shifting Patterns of Agricultural Trade Vasilii Erokhin, Gao Tianming, Jean Vasile Andrei, 2021-08-06 This book is a pivotal publication that seeks to improve food security in the conditions of escalating protectionism in global agricultural trade The authors argue that global trade systems have been increasingly distorted by emerging trade tensions between major actors such as the US China the EU and Russia as well as trade policies in many other countries In view of the most recent disruption of global food supply chains due to the outbreak of the COVID 19 the book examines the effects of administrative restrictions tariff escalations and other forms of protectionism on food security Over the decades food security concerns have been emerging along with the growth of the world population More than two billion most impoverished people in the world spent up to 70% of their disposable income on food In 2020 the running pandemic has unraveled accumulated problems As many countries rely on agricultural imports lockdowns and disrupted food production and supply chains tremendously threaten food security of those nations Agricultural trade was already slowing in 2019 before the virus struck weighed down by trade tensions and decelerating economic growth The spread of the virus and strict quarantine measures trigger economic decline that results in food prices rises and volatilities Due to the pandemic nearly all regions will suffer double digit decline in trade volumes 2020 The virus will be defeated but the effects of the protectionism outbreak would have a much longer lasting impact on agricultural production international supply chains and food security worldwide In this publication the authors probe into many of the choices that link national regional and global policies extensively with the provision of food security for all in the new era of post virus global trade Since studying global agricultural trade has a multinational application its outcomes might be shared with a broad international network of stakeholders including research institutions universities and individual researches The book is appropriate for government officials policymakers and businesses of many countries Adaptation of research outcomes and solutions to the situation in particular countries and various collaboration formats will let to increase the visibility of the publication and to elaborate new practices and solutions in the sphere of establishing sustainable food security

Changing Structure of Global Food Consumption and Trade Anita Regmi,2001 EU Administrative Governance Herwig C.H. Hofmann,Alexander H. Türk,2006-01-01 This book is a unique contribution to the understanding of the reality of government and governance in the European Union

Ethics, Hunger and Globalization Per Pinstруп-Andersen,Peter Sandøe,2007-07-20 Ethics Hunger and Globalization adds an ethics dimension to the debate and research about poverty hunger and globalization Outstanding scholars and practitioners from several disciplines discuss what action is needed for ethics to play a bigger role in action by governments civil society and the private sector to reduce poverty and hunger within the context of globalization The book concludes that much of the rhetoric by policy makers is not followed up with appropriate action and discusses the role of ethics in attempts to match action with rhetoric The book also concludes that a better understanding of the values underlying both public and private sector action towards the alleviation of poverty and hunger would lead to more enlightened policies and greater success in attempts to achieve the Millennium Development Goals The interaction between ethical economic and policy aspects is discussed and scholars and experienced practitioners from several disciplines suggest how such integration may be promoted

International Trade and Health Protection Tracey Epps,2008-01-01 This detailed and fully referenced text is a valuable resource both for practitioners and academics Michael Blakeney International Trade Law and Regulation Interspersing law with societal context this volume by Dr Epps stands out among WTO analysis The author offers a delightfully balanced view on the nature and origin of SPS measures including references to history whilst at the same time mastering the hard law of the SPS Agreement in detail Practitioners will enjoy the detailed analysis of WTO dispute settlement A reference book for practice and academia and also a very very good read Geert Van Calster Katholieke Universiteit Leuven Belgium This book examines and critiques the WTO s Agreement on the Application of Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures SPS Agreement asking whether it strikes an appropriate balance between conflicting domestic health protection and trade liberalization objectives It pays particular attention to situations likely to occur but not yet fully examined either in the literature or in WTO law most importantly where public opinion demands regulation in the face of scientific uncertainty as to the existence or otherwise of a health risk Tracey Epps concludes that the SPS Agreement s science based framework is capable of dealing with the differing objectives of health and trade and that it provides countries with more flexibility to respond to scientific uncertainties and public sentiment than many critics contend This conclusion is strongly influenced by a positive analysis of domestic regulatory decision making which finds potential for regulatory capture by domestic protectionist interests and thus emphasizes the importance of ensuring that decisions are made on a sound and principled basis Including a historical overview of disputes over trade and health since the 1800s this book provides a comprehensive analysis of and new perspective on an important area of intersection between international trade law and domestic policy It will be of interest to a wide ranging audience including legal and non legal academics policy makers and analysts in the field of risk regulation trade law practitioners in governments and lawyers and analysts in international institutions , Private Standards in the United States and European Union Markets for Fruit and Vegetables Cora Dankers,2007-01-01 Over the past 20 years the number of standards and certification programmes for agricultural production has grown rapidly Producers who want to export are confronted not only by a plethora of import regulations but also within import countries by different niche markets for which specific requirements have to be fulfilled This report gives an overview of standards and certification programmes relevant for fruit and vegetable producers and exporters in developing countries with a focus on the markets of the United States of America and the European Union In addition it gives an overview of current analytical work on standards and trade reviews major assistance programmes related to standards and provides recommendations for further research

Long Distance Transport and Welfare of Farm Animals Michael C. Appleby,2008 Around 60 billion animals are bred for food each year worldwide and more than a billion are transported often over long distances every week However awareness and understanding of animal welfare the factors that affect it and the correlation between it and other issues such as food safety and quality are increasing Long distance transport can cause both physical and mental problems in animals and promoting animal welfare will be beneficial to both the animals and the agricultural and processing industries In conjunction with a global coalition of NGOs working on animal transport and welfare this volume brings together studies from well known animal scientists and researchers to review the implications and necessity of long distance animal transport for slaughter Authoritative reports on regional practices are combined with discussions of the science economics legislation and procedures involved in this practice This review will be essential for researchers and professionals within animal production and welfare as well as veterinary science FoodReview ,2000 Quality Standards, Value Chains, and International Development Johan Swinnen,Koen Deconinck,Thijs Vandemoortele,Anneleen Vandeplas,2015-07-23 Over the past decades the world has witnessed an unprecedented growth in global value chains propelled by increasingly demanding quality standards These trends lead to concerns about the impact of value chains on development and poverty and about the possible protectionist nature of quality standards in rich countries This book offers the first integrated theoretical analysis of the economic and political factors which determine the level of quality standards as well as their economic effects along the value chain Using realistic assumptions motivated by empirical research the theoretical framework in this book makes it possible to study the efficiency effects as well as the distributional consequences of one of the most striking evolutions affecting global trade and development today
