Social Transformations Between Global Forces and Local Life-Worlds: Introduction

During the last decade, the activities of our Research Committee 09, 'Sociology of Social Transformation and Social Practice',¹ have concentrated on micro-sociological analyses of socioeconomic, political and cultural transformations of local life-worlds through the continuing and intensifying processes of globalization. Our regional focus has been particularly on the non-western world, but it has also included a western comparative perspective. In the emerging contemporary world, two processes of social transformation increasingly and inextricably intertwine. On the one hand, there are universalizing processes of modernization and globalization, mostly of western origins, that are spreading all over the world. On the other hand, there are tendencies to maintain traditional life-worlds, attempting at keeping up the authenticity of their cultures. The interaction of these processes results in varying forms of implantation of and adaptation to western modernity and culture, crystallizing in differing mixtures and hybrid modes of western modernity and non-western traditions, various forms of reaction and resistance to the imposition of the western model, or various forms of dissolution and destruction of traditional life-worlds through the impact of the western civilization.

In order to present the recent activities of our Research Committee to a wider sociological and anthropological public, we bring together in this monograph issue of Current Sociology and in the book in the SSIS series theoretically informed case studies and empirically based theoretical reflections within this research framework. These research activities are of interest to a relatively specialized public of sociologists and anthropologists, students and professional researchers. We think moreover that the topic will interest a wider public in the countries of the South, such as university institutes, NGOs and offices of governments.

World Culture Re-Contextualised Jürgen Schriewer, 2017-10-02 Impressive strands of research have shown the emergent reality of increasing world level interconnection in almost every field of social action As a consequence theories and models have been developed which are aimed at conceptualising this new reality along the lines of an institutionalised World Culture This offers a new understanding of the worldwide diffusion of specifically modern i e mainly Western rules ideologies and organisational patterns and of attendant harmonisation and standardisation of fields of social action World Culture theories have not gone unchallenged Rather cross cultural studies have revealed much more complex processes of regional fragmentation and re diversification of the refraction appropriation and hybridisation through distinct socio cultural conditioning of world level models and ideas and of the ongoing effectiveness both of structural path dependencies and of specifically cultural aspects such as collective memories social meanings and religious or ideological belief systems Comparative research has thus highlighted an intricate simultaneity of contrary currents of the increasing world level interconnection of communication and exchange relations on the one hand and on the other the persistence of context specific interpretations translations and deviation generating re contextualisations of world level forces and challenges This research provides the theoretical problematique that animates this volume The chapters explore the conceptual tools and explanatory power of theories and models which do not just oppose or reject World Culture theory but are instead suited to complementing and differentiating it The volume offers an enlightening conceptualisation of the intricate interaction of global processes with local agency and of world level forces with the self evolutionary potentials inherent in specific contexts socio cultural structures and distinctive meanings constellations This book was originally published as a special issue of Comparative Education

Prohibition, Religious Freedom, and Human Rights: Regulating Traditional Drug Use Beatriz Caiuby Labate, Clancy Cavnar, 2014-03-25 This book addresses the use and regulation of traditional drugs such as peyote ayahuasca coca leaf cannabis khat and Salvia divinorum The uses of these substances can often be found at the intersection of diverse areas of life including politics medicine shamanism religion aesthetics knowledge transmission socialization and celebration The collection analyzes how some of these psychoactive plants have been progressively incorporated and regulated in developed Western societies by both national legislation and by the United Nations Drug Conventions It focuses mainly but not only on the debates in court cases around the world involving the claim of religious use and the legal definitions of religion It further touches upon issues of human rights and cognitive liberty as they relate to the consumption of drugs While this collection emphasizes certain uses of psychoactive substances in different cultures and historical periods it is also useful for thinking about the consumption of drugs in general in contemporary societies The cultural and informal controls discussed here represent alternatives to the current merely prohibitionist policies which are linked to the spread of illicit and violent markets By addressing the disputes involved in the regulation of traditional drug use this volume reflects on notions such as origin place authenticity and tradition thereby relating drug policy to broader social science debates Islamic Schooling in the West Mohamad Abdalla,Dylan Chown,Muhammad Abdullah,2018-05-30 This book presents the views of leading scholars academics and educators on the renewal of Islamic schools in the Western context The book argues that as Islamic schools in Western contexts have negotiated the establishment phase they must next embrace a period of renewal Renewal relates to a purposeful synthesis of the tradition with contemporary educational practice and greater emphasis on empirical research substantiating best practices in Islamic schools This renewal must reflect teaching and learning practices consistent with an Islamic worldview and pedagogy It should also inform among other aspects classroom management models and relevant and contextual Islamic and Arabic studies This book acquaints the reader with contemporary challenges and opportunities in Islamic schools in the Western context with a focus on Australia Toxic Belonging? Identity and Ecology in Southern Africa Dan Wylie,2009-03-26 Southern Africa s literatures brim with references to the natural world its landscapes and its animals Both fictional and non fictional works express ongoing debates often highly politicised concerning its various groups senses of identity and belonging in relation to the land and its denizens This often involves a pervasive tension between Western settler societies conceptions of modernity and indigenous world views each complicating the often simplistic binarisms drawn between them In this selection of papers from the 2006 Literature and Ecology Colloquium held in Grahamstown South Africa the complexities of forging imaginative and pragmatic senses of belonging in Southern Africa are explored from a variety of disciplinary persepectives philosophical historical botanical and anthropological as well as literary Their subject matter ranges widely from Bushmen testimonies to Berlin missionaries from prehistoric cave dwellers to Schopenhauer from white Batswana to lion tamers but find themselves echoing one another in intriguing and illuminating ways These are highly localised meditations on age old questions What does it mean to be human within a natural environment Why do we appear to be so damaging to the ecology that sustains us Is our presence inevitably toxic to our planetary fellow travellers How do we forge an ecologically sound sense of belonging in this post colonial post apartheid post modern era If this collection has a single most prominent question binding it together it is this What are the limits and potentialities of human compassion towards the natural world
