Moland, 2020 In recent years the United States Agency for International Development USAID has provided funding to the New York based Sesame Workshop Its goal is to create international versions of Sesame Street that teach tolerance and democratic values with the hopes of decreasing conflict and preventing terrorism This book takes an in depth look at the Nigerian version Sesame Square started in 2011 in an attempt to build peaceful coexistence and counter the extremist messages of Boko Haram It offers rare insights into the complexities inherent in attempts to teach cosmopolitan ideals of democracy and tolerance and the ways in which such efforts can compromise peacebuilding in countries suffering from internal conflicts

Thomas Wolfe and Lost Children in Southern Literature Paula Eckard,2024-01-12 Paula Gallant Eckard not only explores the utterly teachable The Lost Boy she also provides substantive and provocative readings of a wide variety of contemporary Southern fiction Through her critical analysis and admirable focus on lost children and children suffering loss Eckard examines how some contemporary writers provide new stories of the Civil War the role of other wars in Southern lives and the centrality of family Margaret M Bauer Rivers Chair of Southern Literature at East Carolina University First published in 1937 Thomas Wolfe s The Lost Boy gives name to the theme of lost children that has permeated much of southern literature and provides a template for telling their stories In Thomas Wolfe and Lost Children in Southern Literature which grew out of many years of teaching The Lost Boy and other works of southern literature Paula Gallant Eckard uses Wolfe s novel as a starting point to trace thematic connections among contemporary southern novels that are comparably evocative in their treatment of lostness Eckard explores six authors and their works Fred Chappell s I Am One of You Forever Mark Powell s Prodigals Kaye Gibbons s Ellen Foster Sue Monk Kidd s The Secret Life of Bees Bobbie Anne Mason s In Country Robert Olmstead's Coal Black Horse and Lee Smith's On Agate Hill. Though each novel is unique and a product of its own time period, all the novels explored here are cast against the backdrop of the South during eras of conflict and change. Like The Lost Boy, these novels reflect a sense of history, a sense of loss associated with that history, and an innate love of story and narrative, as well as representations of work that historically have defined the lives of individuals and families throughout the South. In its artistic treatment of lostness, The Lost Boy creates a significant literary legacy. As Eckard demonstrates, that legacy continues in the form of these six contemporary authors who, in writing about the South, perpetuate Wolfe's efforts as they also create or find the lost child in new ways.

PAULA GALLANT ECKARD is an associate professor of English and the director of the American studies program at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. She is the author of Maternal Body and Voice in Toni Morrison. Bobbie Ann Mason and Lee Smith: Machinery. Fred Herbert Colvin, Lester Gray French, 1920. Families, Schools, and Communities. Chandler Barbour, Nita Barbour, Patricia A. Scully, 2008. A basic tenet of Families, Schools, Communities Building Partnerships for Educating Children, fourth edition, is that schools will always be a primary venue for educating the young child, and educators must be in the forefront of any endeavor to bring about change. However, the authors stress that to accomplish the tasks at hand, all school districts must develop vibrant partnerships uniting parents and community members with teachers in educating tomorrow's citizens. Schools are where the action will bloom, but respectful collaboration is the key to success.

After facing a rain of bouncing boulders the size of Volkswagens, an exploding whale, forty years in the making, and the worst latte in the history of the world, Jackson Poe no longer believes in coincidence. Taking a break from his free far more often than he'd like, lance writing career, Poe finds himself on assignment to the Surfland Oregon tourism bureau where the director seems to do everything possible to kill Poe and business.
