

GLOBALIZATION AND THE FUTURE OF AFRICAN LANGUAGES

The background of the slide is a map of the African continent, rendered in shades of orange, yellow, and brown. In the bottom left corner, there is a photograph of a traditional African dish, possibly injera, served on a white plate. The dish is garnished with a small red chili pepper, a small bowl of dark sauce, and several small round loaves of bread. The editors' names are printed in white text on the right side of the map.

Globalisation And African Languages:

Globalisation and African Languages Katrin Bromber, Birgit Smieja, 2011-07-20 Globalisation and African Languages links African language studies to the concept of globalisation which increasingly undergoes critical review Hence African linguists of various provenience can make valuable contributions to this debate In cultural matters which by definition include language there is often a sense that globalisation leads to a major trend of homogenisation which results in a reduction of diversity on the one hand and on the other in new themes being incorporated into global cultural patterns However often conflicting and overlapping particularistic interests exist which have a constructive as well as destructive potential This aspect leads directly to the first of three sections of this volume LANGUAGE USE AND ATTITUDES which addresses some of the burning issues in sociolinguistic research Since this research area is tightly linked to the educational domain these important issues are addressed in articles that comprise the second section of this volume LANGUAGE POLICY AND EDUCATION The third section of the volume presents articles dealing with LANGUAGE DESCRIPTION AND CLASSIFICATION demonstrating which parts of different language systems are affected through contact under historical and modern conditions The contributions of all the well known scholars in this volume show that globalisation is a two way street and to ensure that all sides benefit in a reciprocal manner means the impacts have to be monitored globally regionally nationally and locally By disseminating and emphasising these linguistic findings as part of the global cultural heritage African language studies may offer urgently needed new perspectives towards a rapidly changing world

Globalization and Language Vitality Cécile B. Vigouroux, Salikoko S. Mufwene, 2008-11-05 This book discusses the effects of globalization on languages in Africa In contrast to previous studies the contributors examine whether or not globalization is affecting African languages in the same ways and at the same rate in different countries and how local experiences of language change vary from place to place Rather than seeing English as the killer language par excellence the contributors probe ways in which languages are being used side by side to complement each other in some contexts while competing against European colonial languages in others The result is a diverse canvas of language vitality in the African context including matters of endangerment and loss through the lense of globalization in its various interpretations This book is a must read for students and researchers interested in language change and death and in the fate of European languages in the rest of the world

Globalization and the Future of African Languages Francis O. Egbokhare, Clement Kolawole, 2006 Globalization and the Future of African Languages Africa and Globalization Kelebogile T. Setiloane, Abdul Karim Bangura, 2020-10-24 This edited volume examines the challenges of globalization in light of the need to revisit and reconceptualize the notion of Pan Africanism The first part of the book examines globalization and Africa s socioeconomic and political development in this century by using the Diopian Pluridisciplinary Methodology This approach is imperative because the challenges faced by Africa vis vis globalization and socioeconomic development are so multiplexed that no single disciplinary approach can adequately analyze them and yield substantive policy recommendations The chapters in the second part analyze the imperatives for Africa's global knowledge production development and economic transformation in the face of the pressures of globalization Part two demonstrates an urgent need for Africa's significant participation in the global knowledge economy in order to meet the continent's modern transformation and development aspirations The final part examines lessons from old and new Pan Africanism and how they can be utilized to deal with the challenges emanating from the forces of modern globalization With its multidisciplinary approach to a wide range of pressing modern issues for the African content this book is essential reading for scholars across the social sciences interested in where Africa is now and where it should go in this increasingly globalized world Globalisation and the African Experience Emmanuel Chia, Kashim Ibrahim Tala, Henry Kah Jick, 2005 ICT, Globalisation and the Study of Languages and Linguistics in Africa Ozo-mekuri Ndimele, 2016-12-14 This book contains papers which focus on the twin subjects of globalisation and information communication technologies ICTs They express either fear or optimism regarding their effects on the survival of indigenous cultures languages and literature This book is a must read for anyone who is interested to learn more about the role of globalisation in the erosion of cultural as well as linguistic diversity and the impact of ICTs in the development of indigenous languages in Africa Language in African urban contexts Gudrun Miehe, Jonathan Owens, Manfred von Roncador, 2007 This volume contains the results of the Bayreuth SFB research program Effects of globalisation processes on the vitality of languages in West African cities Two towns with different historical and colonial background Maiduguri in Nigeria and Banfora in Burkina Faso were selected as research areas The contrast between language and social institutions is most obvious in the colonial and post colonial world in Africa Colonization was characterized by the importation of European institutions which were of a qualitatively new nature linked to the globalising forces This qualitative newness is captured in our term direct globalisation A basic observation is that the globalising forces led to a hierarchicalisation of languages in Africa which is not obviously attested in the institutions of direct globalisation Our term indirect globalisation describes the alignment of local practices to the external forces and institutions introduced during a globalising colonial and post colonial experience The Impact of Globalisation on African Languages and Cultures Maditlhapi Martha Malindi, 2018 ICT, Globalisation and the Study of Languages and Linguistics in Africa Ndimele, Ozo-mekuri, 2016-12-14 This book contains papers which focus on the twin subjects of globalisation and information communication technologies ICTs They express either fear or optimism regarding their effects on the survival of indigenous cultures languages and literature This book is a must read for anyone who is interested to learn more about the role of globalisation in the erosion of cultural as well as linguistic diversity and the impact of ICTs in the development of indigenous languages in Africa Globalisation and the African Experience Etienne Modeste Assiga Ateba, 2005 Journal of African Languages and Linguistics ,2005 Decolonising Higher Education in the Era of Globalisation and Internationalisation Kehdinga George Fomunyam, 2019-07-01 Conceived within a context of transdisciplinarity and pluriversalism and in rigorous response to the Eurocentric globalising and nationalising structures of power that undergird and inhabit contemporary praxis in higher education especially in African higher education this collection of essays brings to the on going discourse on decolonisation fresh rich probing and multilayered perspectives that should accelerate the process of decolonisation not only in higher education in Africa but also in the global imaginary A remarkable courageous and potentially revolutionary achievement this book deserves a special place on curricula throughout the world of higher education African Languages Education in the Era of Globalisation Emmanuel Nforbi,2009
