What Is at Stake in Building "Non-Western" International Relations Theory? Yong-Soo Eun, 2018-01-12 International Relations IR as a discipline is often deemed to be too Western centric It has been argued that much of mainstream IR theory is simply an abstraction of Western history In this respect many IR scholars have called for broadening the theoretical horizon of IR while problematising the Western parochialism of the discipline and it is increasingly acknowledged that IR needs to embrace a wider range of histories experiences and theoretical perspectives particularly those outside of the West However despite such a meaningful debate over broadening the theoretical and practical horizons of IR several critical questions remain unclear and under explored For example does IR need to embrace pluralism If so how much To what extent and in what sense is IR parochial Should IR promote dialogue across theoretical and spatial divides If so how Yong Soo Eun addresses these questions He undertakes a literature review and an empirical analysis of the extent to which the field has actually become diverse and pluralistic This investigation considers diversity beyond the current limited focus on the geographical origins of theory Yong Soo also draws attention to the mechanisms and processes of knowledge production and transmission in IR More importantly he addresses what is probably the most acute issue associated with the non Western IR theory building enterprise namely fragmentation and dialogue In conclusion Yong Soo notes that the role of unsettling the present hierarchical structure of the discipline falls to reflexive individual agents He argues that in order for their agential power to be more fully harnessed in the opening up of IR critical self reflection and collective empathy and collaboration among marginalised scholars are all essential International Relations Theory for the Twenty-First Century Martin Griffiths,2007-10-24 Written by an international team of experts in the field this is the first comprehensive textbook to provide an overview of all the most important theories within international relations The Globalization of World Politics John Baylis,Steve Smith,Patricia Owens,2011 Now in its fifth edition this title has been fully revised and updated in the light of recent developments in world politics with new chapters on the changing nature of war human security and international ethics Regionalism, Globalisation and International Order Jens-Uwe Wunderlich,2016-03-23 New regionalism and globalization have been prominent themes in academic and political debates since the beginning of the 1990s Despite the considerable amount of scholarly attention that the new regionalism has received in recent years its full empirical and theoretical potential has yet to be fully investigated This illuminating study provides an overview of new avenues in theorizing regionalism and proposes a consolidated framework for analysis and comparison Offering a comparative historical perspective of European and Southeast Asian regionalism it presents new and imaginative insights into the theory and practice of regionalism and the links between regional developments globalization and international order
