Globalization Of Industry And National Government:

Prison-Industrial Complex and the Global Economy Linda Evans, Eve Goldberg, 2009-09-01 The prison business in the US is not based on locking up punishing or rehabilitating dangerous hoodlums Follow the money and find how the prison industrial complex fits into the New World Order of free trade and imprisoned people the war on drugs and capital flight

Governments, Globalization, and International Business John H. Dunning, 1997-07-24 It is a cliché to say that we live in a globalized world in which investment flows communications and the operations of multinationals from all parts of the world have changed the character of the international business environment But the easy concept of globalization poses as many questions as it answers and it is the purpose of this book to address these challenges In Governments Globalization and International Business a prestigious group of international scholars explore in detail the consequences of globalization defined as the deepening structural interdependence of the world economy In Part 1 John Dunning Richard Lipsey Susan Strange and Stephen Kobrin analyse these changes from different disciplinary perspectives and intellectual backgrounds The basic question they address is what are the consequences of globalization on the nature form and level of domestic economic activity In doing so they also consider the increasing mobility of knowledge and information the role of international corporations and the sovereignty of the nation state in the modern borderless world In Part 2 the different experiences and policies of a number of economies are assessed in a series of country studies These include the G7 countries as well as the developing East Asian economies Latin America and smaller developed countries In the final part John Stopford and Edward Graham stand back and look at the changing role of National and Supranational governance In doing so they underscore a fundamental tenet of the volume that globalization requires national governments to re evaluate various factors of their systemic governance Yet despite apparently convergent trends they argue there are no universal prescriptions for the way governments should respond to globalization and the policy challenge is a more complex one than merely more or less government

Global Corporations and National Governments Edward Graham, 1996-06-01 There is inherent tension between the increasingly global focus of foreign investors and the continuing national focus of governments Countries particularly developing ones compete to attract investment from global corporations and they attach performance requirements to tilt the impact of those investments in their favor This is because the host nations expect investment to raise growth levels efficiency and living standards At the same time the home countries of such corporations worry that their firms are not accorded fair and reciprocal treatment abroad These issues have become a source of conflict among nations one that could escalate considerably if an agreement is not soon reached Graham's study analyzes the nature and depth of the international investment problem and its potential impact on the world economy and on economic relations among nations He urges that current rules on foreign direct investment be enlarged and restructured via new international rules and institutional arrangements and offers two alternatives for doing so

Handbook on the Geographies of Globalization

Robert C. Kloosterman, Virginie Mamadouh, Pieter Terhorst, 2018-11-30 Processes of globalization have changed the world in many often fundamental ways Increasingly these processes are being debated and contested This Handbook offers a timely rich as well as critical panorama of these multifaceted processes with up to date chapters by renowned specialists from many countries It comprises chapters on the historical background of globalization different geographical perspectives including world systems analysis and geopolitics the geographies of flows of people goods and services and capital and the geographies of places including global cities clusters port cities and the impact of climate change Governance in a Global Economy Miles Kahler, David A. Lake, 2021-08-10 Critics of globalization claim that economic integration drains political authority from states devolving authority to newly empowered regions delegating it to supranational organizations and transferring it to multinational firms and nongovernmental organizations Globalization is also attacked for forcing convergence of state institutions and policies and threatening the ability of societies to chart their own democratically determined courses In Governance in a Global Economy Miles Kahler and David Lake assemble the contributions of seventeen leading scholars who have systematically investigated how global economic integration produces changes of governance These authors conclude that globalization has created a new and intricate fabric of governance but one that fails to match the stark portrait of beleaguered states Exploring changes in governance across several policy areas such as tourism trade finance and fiscal and monetary policy the authors demonstrate that globalization changes the policy preferences of some actors increases the bargaining power of others and opens new institutional options for yet others By reintroducing agency and choice into our understanding of globalization this book provides important new insights into the complex and contingent effects of globalization on political authority and governance The introduction and the conclusion are by the editors the contributors are James A Caporaso Benjamin J Cohen Barry Eichengreen Zachary Elkins Geoffrey Garrett Peter Gourevitch Virginia Haufler Michael J Hiscox Robert O Keohane Lisa L Martin Walter Mattli Kathleen R McNamara Joseph S Nye Jr Jonathan Rodden Ronald Rogowski Beth A Simmons and Peter Van Houten The Oxford Handbook of Industrial Policy Arkebe Oqubay, Christopher Cramer, Ha-Joon Chang, Richard Kozul-Wright, 2020-10-20 Industrial policy has long been regarded as a strategy to encourage sector industry or economy wide development by the state It has been central to competitiveness catching up and structural change in both advanced and developing countries It has also been one of the most contested perspectives reflecting ideologically inflected debates and shifts in prevailing ideas There has lately been a renewed interest in industrial policy in academic circles and international policy dialogues prompted by the weak outcomes of policies pursued by many developing countries under the direction of the Washington Consensus and its descendants the slow economic recovery of many advanced economies after the 2008 global financial crisis and mounting anxieties about the national consequences of globalization The Oxford Handbook of Industrial Policy presents a comprehensive review of and a novel approach to the conceptual and theoretical foundations of industrial policy The Handbook also presents analytical perspectives on how industrial policy connects to broader issues of development strategy macro economic policies infrastructure development human capital and political economy By combining historical and theoretical perspectives and integrating conceptual issues with empirical evidence drawn from advanced emerging and developing countries The Handbook offers valuable lessons and policy insights to policymakers practitioners and researchers on developing productive transformation technological capabilities and international competitiveness It addresses pressing issues including climate change the gendered dimensions of industrial policy global governance and technical change Written by leading international thinkers on the subject the volume pulls together different perspectives and schools of thought from neo classical to structuralist development economists to discuss and highlight the adaptation of industrial policy in an ever changing socio economic and political landscape

Multinationals and Industrial Competitiveness John H. Dunning, Rajneesh Narula, 2005-01-01 This book provides an excellent overview of the changing relationship between multinationals and economic development as globalization has taken off and substantially altered the conditions for catching up as opposed to falling behind The authors move very effectively between the discussion of concepts that are crucial to understanding such changes and various empirical evidence on foreign direct investment trade inter firm relationships institutional settings and competitiveness John Cantwell Rutgers University US The globalisation of the world economy has undermined many of the old certainties regarding foreign direct investment flows Dunning and Narula use the concepts of alliance capitalism and technological evolution to analyse recent trends in international business They identify the challenges to government policymakers from regional integration and the consequent intensification of political competition to attract high technology investment This masterful and incisive analysis brings great clarity to perplexing issues and delineates a cogent industrial policy agenda for a globalised economy Mark Casson University of Reading UK This book offers an important contribution to the contemporary debate on the role of multinational enterprises MNEs in economic development in an increasingly globalizing knowledge intensive and alliance based world economy Each of the chapters touches upon critical issues now facing the global economy They also address the growing importance of innovative activities of firms in promoting economic development and industrial restructuring as well as the role of FDI and cooperative agreements in furthering this goal Emphasis is placed on the increasingly significant role of national governments in promoting the intellectual capital of their indigenous resources and capabilities and of inter firm collaborative alliances Globalization and technological advances are reconfiguring the ingredients of the competitiveness of firms and nation states They are emphasizing the increasingly important role of both private and social institutions as determinants of the success of corporations and of the economic development of societies Covering a range of issues from economic development alliance capitalism government policies regional integration and industrial development this authoritative book will greatly appeal to academics and economists especially those interested in international business and management

Global Governance as Business Strategy Diana Manuel'evna Mateo, 2010-04 Business is Global Interrelations in global bargaining power frameworks became shifted by the impact of global governance nowadays The whole world is linked through internet based operations financial markets global problems governmental alliances and business relations Understanding this complexity is essential for multinational companies to succeed in the competitive environment The Global Business But also for the other player within the dynamic framework of global bargaining power it is important to understand the mechanism of interrelations and dependencies This literature deals with the four main groups that build up together the Global Governance framework National Governments Trans National Companies Civil Society and International Organizations Indeed it takes the Trans National Companies TNC into focus and explains the mechanisms that have impact on their bargaining power As theoretical basis the Porters five forces model was taken in order to reconstruct the competitive environment Later this model becomes modified and added by a sixth source based on the studies of Aidan R Vining In the end the Hirschmann's Voice and Exit Theory is used to indicate the possible strategies to react on given global constellations Each source and its impact on the bargaining power framework are analyzed explicit In a second step the interrelations and mutual reactions are taken into focus Last but not least this literature shows up options for TNC to conquer the mechanism gain competitive advantage and increase bargaining power that leads to higher revenue in a business related sense

Industrial Relations Trevor Colling, Mike Terry, 2010-09-07 This revised edition of Industrial Relations Theory and Practice follows the approach established successfully in preceding volumes edited by Paul Edwards

The focus is on Britain after a decade of public policy which has once again altered the terrain on which employment relations develop. Government has attempted to balance flexibility with fairness preserving light touch regulation whilst introducing rights to minimum wages and to employee representation in the workplace. Yet this is an open economy conditioned significantly by developing patterns of international trade and by European Union policy initiatives. This interaction of domestic and cross national influences in analysis of changes in employment relations runs throughout the volume.

Competition in Global Industries Michael E. Porter, 1986 Examines patterns of international competition since the 1960s

Industrial Relations: Labour markets, labour process and trade unionism John E. Kelly, 2002 This set is designed to capture both the complexity of the field of industrial relations globally as well as bringing out the continuing relevance of competing theoretical approaches to the subject

Mediating Globalization Andrew P. Cortell, 2012-02-01 Has globalization fundamentally altered international relations producing a race to the bottom in which states compete for economic growth and development by adopting similar liberal economic strategies. Mediating Globalization challenges this increasingly dominant perspective demonstrating that national governments often respond to global competitive pressures with more not less economic intervention. Using interviews archival research and secondary sources Andrew P Cortell explores the strategies adopted by the United States and Britain with regard to one of the world's most globalized sectors the semiconductor industry. From the early 1970s through the mid 1990s he argues increasing globalization pressures in each country led them to more actively intervene in the evolution of their semiconductor markets rather than assume a more marginal role. The empirical evidence moreover indicates that the two countries adopted similar responses whether liberal or interventionist as a consequence of similar domestic institutional incentives rather than constraints identified to emerge from globalization.

National Politics in a Global Economy Philip A. Mundo, 1999 In our increasingly globalized world U S trade policy stands at the intersection of foreign and domestic affairs. This book explains trade policy in terms of domestic politics presenting a concise account of its origins and political significance. Although trade policy is a component of foreign policy Philip A Mundo explains how it is rooted in the domestic policy process and carries with it enormous implications for domestic affairs. He reviews the growing importance of trade policy since World War II particularly over the past twenty years and shows how recent policies like NAFTA are shaped by the domestic agenda. Mundo explains trade policy as the product of a three stage process comprising agenda setting program adoption and implementation He reviews this process in terms of the ideas that inform trade policy the interests that seek to influence it and the institutions that shape it He also addresses the importance of specific measures such as administrative relief and trade sanctions This book distills the essence of the trade policy process into a concise innovative framework accessible to students and general readers With the growing importance of trade policy it makes explicit many of the subtleties surrounding policymaking while fully explicating the legal and international context in which trade operates
